

CHANGES

1996-1998

(Prior to series The Nature of the Coming Changes)

- Earth Changes, Challenges, and Victory
- Change, a cosmic perspective
- Doroxol with a message about moving forward, and the coming Earth changes
- Earth Changes
- Rueen speaks on the coming changes

Earth Changes, Challenges, and Victory

March 11, 1996

JANU: We have come to you in this moment to begin a discourse on events surrounding the next phase of Earth evolution. There is a darkness descending in a way that calls for a mass or general approach of light workers too numerous to count.

There are those among you engaged in this work to restore the balance, the peace, needed to sustain growth of the planet on its journey. Seeming crises in earth changes during (the) evolutionary phase provide opportunity and draw those negative forces to take advantage of, you see. This comes at a time when there will come to be a movement in the opposite direction of the plan established long ago. These negative forces must be contained in a way that transcends competition or violence. They are held in check by light workers engaged in holding the focus for the planet; the ideal must be clear, you see, in the intent, in the minds of those servers. There is an armada of those who serve the Earth coming at this time to hold this ideal in balance with the plan. We are not against the negative forces, you see, but control their influence. Love and the focus held in ideal are more powerful for they have the support of ongoing life, building in nature not self-serving and disempowering. The legions of servers know this and will do well. The larger understanding here, you see, is one of knowing, understanding the conditions that surround those that are misguided, have made choices not supported by the life of ongoingness and expansion.

It is not necessary at this time to go into detail concerning these negative activities. They will be taken care of in due course. The support of the light workers helps insure this. Attention then not on these forces but wholly on that ideal for the Earth we speak of. Growth through changes into a better way, into a fuller life. This is a joyous thing to ponder and embrace.

Perceive then not the changes as the product of negative influence but part of a grand plan for change in a life supporting direction. Be clear in this, for the negative forces would have you see otherwise. See the light in these changes. See the hope and the promise. See the connectedness, the bridge to an outcome in the light according to plan and design, born of the love of so many who come to serve.

These are wondrous times in which you live and have your being. Weather the storms. Hold the Earth in loving ideal. Feel your connectedness and lend your beingness that this be so. This path for you brings into your awareness a unity with life, order with unfoldment with the brotherhood that is life and light. You are not alone in this. In peace and in love we are with you always.

Change, a cosmic perspective

March 13, 1997

JANU: There is the push, so to speak, to expand the awareness and the consciousness, not only of your world but of humanity. This push comes at a time when there are others so inclined in connected ways across your segment or sector, if you will, of your galaxy. There is what would appear to be, in your graphical terms, a pie like arrangement of influence and progression with the complexities of structure that include the Central Sun as a non-physical centering of reality all the way to the physical universe or galaxy we would say. This pie shaped vector or segment, sector, is multi-dimensional. These sectors comprise the totality of the movement in consciousness in realization or manifestation of potential of life flow for your galaxy and it is possible to embrace the essential nature of this totality in your awareness. However, the scope and the breadth of each sector's unfoldment and responsibility is awesome in itself, in its own right.

It is true, these divisions, if you will, exist within the potential nature of each one and it is possible to shift from one to another for emphasis. These sectors are not limited in number to your zodiacal breakdown, if you will, for understanding. They are in the thousands in number. The zodiacal universe or understanding is a product of your sector. There are parallels or similarities in others but they have their uniqueness as well, dear one.

Now, as to this push for change of which we speak. The thresholds or strata of accelerated moments in life flow or unfoldment in each sector are not random or disconnected from each other. There are some that would seem to be and others more obviously related. There is a sharing or a mutual response to the urge to move forward at these cusps of change from sector to sector. And there are cusps that flow forth from the Central Sun itself, synchronizing the overall unfoldment for the entire galaxy. Consider the vastness of the range and variety of hierarchies, orders of service, researchers, travelers, and others who make up this entire galactic reality. All are available for knowingness but the requirements for connection vary.

The push for change, dear one, is not intended as punishment or travail upon anyone or any life. It is seen in its nature as a blessing born of the magnificence, the beauty, and the rejuvenating power of a thrust of life. Seen in this way, one more easily embraces and engages this rejuvenation, this new breath of life, merging into its promise and its fullness with no regret at leaving behind old ways. These changes are superior life, dear one, for they enhance more than negate the beauty of what has been known. Many fear change for they do not understand its nature when it is born of the Source of Life. They see change as confusion in the comfort of the status quo, uncertainty and the likelihood of negative outcome from their point of view. The changes born of the Source of Life, dear one, do not have this in their nature.

It is of value and wisdom to contemplate the breath of change from the Source of Life and feel its rejuvenation influence in your life. The clarity of perception to embrace these changes rides on that breath. The sub-currents and eddies of minor change, from that perspective, are the byproducts of momentums set in motion by those with agendas more aligned with separation than with oneness. Even at this time of the early beginnings in awareness of the coming changes, which have already begun to arrive, dear one, your fears and your doubts will be healed and replaced with enthusiasm, anticipation, eagerness, as you embrace these thrusts from the Source of Life and choose to be one with them. Allow their life to be yours. There are those in your galaxy who have accomplished this with regularity and it is a natural experience for them. They will assist you in this understanding, should you ask.

There is a world by the name of Volean in your sector that has embraced these changes so many times that it has become the planet of training or schooling, if you will, for the many other worlds experiencing these movements only recently. It is a world for planet to planet sharing of understanding as well as for hierarchies and incarnate beings of other worlds, you see. It is located close to the Central Sun, in your sector. It still retains its existence across the dimensions for this purpose. It has its unique hierarchy and can be addressed through its name and your desire. It has intentionally delayed its return home to the Central Sun to serve in this way. Your Sanat Kumara has visited this world and contributes with regularity. He has the understanding of these changes on many levels of reality and is an excellent resource to assist you. He is in somewhat constant connection or communication with this world and its hierarchy, for the Earth has its significant or key change pattern to master and manifest and contribute to the experience and understanding of your sector.

The primary or significant change quality the Earth has before it at this time is to demonstrate union and cooperation of oneness of consciousness and love for all life in all of its species and the Earth itself. This fundamental building block of progression of the flow of life is the Earth's to demonstrate and offer at this time. There are those worlds closer to the Central Sun reality who have demonstrated this and now live it. It is the Earth's outer rim opportunity to extend this reality further into the sector reaches. The one who arrives with his entourage announced by the Brethren of Peace, signaled by the comet connection opportunity known as Hale-Bopp, comes to assist the Earth in this opportunity.

We leave you at this time with this presentation and glimpse, if you will, and invite your consideration and involvement. We trust this answers to some degree your enquiry this morning about the coming changes.

Doroxol with a message about moving forward, and the coming Earth changes

March 21, 1997

JANU: There is one who draws near at this time to express a concern of long interest to this one, and welcomes the opportunity to express this through this proceeding. He comes to us from the sector known as, the one called Doridean, spoken of earlier. This sector embodies the principle of life known as corrective or modification influence for outcome enhancement. Their expertise in this area has been drawn upon for millennia, if you will. They have an uncanny gift, through broad application and experience, to understand and perceive, with great insight, the direction and trends and patterns in courses chosen and engaged by others and understand and can project their outcome. They have been commissioned, if you will, to assist the Earth in its time of culmination in some areas and initiation in others. These key moments in the evolution of a world can be critical to minimize major reversals in the future. Their representative here, named Doroxol, would speak at this time. Let us make the adjustment, dear one.

DOROXOL: Good morning, my brother. I am Doroxol speaking, from the Doridean sector and engaging this attunement process at this time, with gratitude and well wishes, you see. It has come to our attention and is our interest to assist the Earth at this time of its change. Not only in a planetary way but in the consciousness of those lifeforms that are supported by and support this Earth movement.

As we examine the conditions present, we find a measure of satisfaction or approval, if you will, in the direction taken by so many to consciously engage this change process. Not as an abstract viewer but as a committed one, engaged in successful outcome, and those changes needed for such, you see. This is why we are here at this time, to assist in this growing clarity of need. This is one of the first stages we would assist in, in any world making such a change, to encourage and support those into conscious engagement. For the view, even for those beginning to engage, is based to some degree on the perceptions of what has gone on before. And some of these need clarifying to engage more successfully those opportunities that present themselves as the engagement and access to the new life experience opens, you see.

Moving forward in consciousness and in life experience is an interesting study in itself. To understand this principle, we would suggest your consideration of this. Moving forward is not the denial or disengagement of that left behind, for lack of a better phrase, but is the merging of life into life. Is the engagement of, as has been said before, inclusive awareness and embrace. The Earth moves forward now as an expansion of the essential nature of its ongoing experience to this point. The forward embrace includes many elements, including progressions of possibilities based on that achieved, perception of potential and assimilation of such, and the gathering of resources to facilitate. These resources include our efforts on your behalf as well. And it is wise to do so, and in the tradition of the expansion of your galaxy.

An ongoing challenge and opportunity is to increase your awareness of those resources and appreciate what they have to offer. Life is rich with these, dear one, and our particular interest and service affords us the opportunity for broad awareness and engagement of these resources. You would do well to do the same. Those global beings, consciousnesses that serve your world and reality, understand this and engage it.

Earth Changes

October 26, 1997

JANU: On the verge now, on the edge of the dawning of this new era filled with so much hope for the advancement of the world and its people, as you put it, and life in general, we would counsel in this way of understanding. Embrace this new opportunity with the same fervor, enthusiasm and hope that we do as well. So many have trepidation as to not only outcome but the transition experience and negative connotations of such, you see. We would have you understand at this time that this experience is as you make it. The trials and tribulations which you fear so much are not design parameters of this transition or its original intent, you see. They are of your own doing, your own creation, a product of what you have experienced and created within the grid work or framework of that involvement with this life episode. The placement of cause for, or reason for, such anticipation on the role of the Earth at these times is a denial of personal responsibility. And in so doing, bring upon yourselves that which you fear. For you are creator of such, you see, dear ones, and has always been thus. The Earth does not create in this way of manifestation but does follow impress from those collective consciousnesses that are part of its domain. It is not its preference or its desire for such tribulation.

We of the Hierarchy of Light, the brotherhoods of service and ongoingness, would counsel you in this way for many such worlds and regions have undergone similar transitions in the past without those elements of which you fear. They have learned from each other to embrace change and experience the joy and freedom of it, the liberation and the awesome power that precipitates it. These Councils of Light of whom we speak from time to time and engage for their wisdom and service are a vast network of highly experienced and evolved realities combined in such a way as to present the fullest or best possible outcome for these adventures in transition, you see.

We would counsel at this time that you inject into your framework and focus for embrace a clear and ever-present vision and anchoring in a perception of the thrill, the wonder, the hope, and the promise of change. Many will have self-fulfilling experiences and counter this presentation the common human attitude of "And see, this is as I said it would be" and find comfort in their confidence, in their knowingness of despair in the midst of change. The decision for this spectrum of experience will always lie with you. Our hope and our dream and vision for our, and your, future is not so dismal, dear ones. You create these within your own realm of perception and limited knowingness and lack of ownership and confidence in the beauty of your true being.

This does not bode as harsh criticism of your current predicament but as wise counsel and encouragement for not only change in consciousness, which is the theme of current evolvment... but brings with it the ever present counsel and support of those who see in a larger way. See not these challenges of your making to be endured alone, but overcome and surpassed in concert with the larger life and those who serve it.

Rueen speaks on the coming changes

March 2, 1998 A

JANU: We have at this afternoon's opportunity the ear and voice of one who speaks on the subject of the prevalent themes that are and have been attached to the understanding of the so-called coming changes. These themes propel the experience into these changes, some surviving them, some serving the change. The one whom we address today is of the times when much upheaval took place on his world, which was a precursor for the models for change in your world. He looks on with interest by way of comparison.

RUEEN: Greetings, brother. You may refer to me as Ru Hodeba Reen (Rue Hoe-deh'-bah Reen) or, more briefly, Rueen.

I come to you at this time to forecast for you what so many refer to as coming changes. I alert you, dear one. They are no longer coming. They are here. As with the hierarchy of the lowering of life, the changes begin in the higher realms, passing down through consciousness and through awareness and into the denser matter of your reality. Those who are unaware see only stirrings of uncertainty and confusion in direction in life, and then unexplained changes in their environment and support for living. I would caution you that it is the wiser course to be abreast of and in communication with the entire spectrum. For only in this way will you understand and not only be in harmony with but facilitate these measures. We know of no substitute for the wisdom of this path, although many other paths are taken, as you may observe in your world.

My purpose in coming at this time is to bring to your attention this reality and encourage it. There are worlds that this reality is clearly evident in and the entire life reality progresses as a unit. To coin a phrase of your vernacular, they hit the ground running, dear one, into their new understanding and opportunities. We wish this for your world as well. But this will not happen unconsciously. Serve your people in the direction of encouraging them to communicate with the rest of life through the inner being. This is not an exercise in relaxation and just well-being. This is for the purpose of embracing life and not being dragged along by it, you see.

It cannot be overstressed, the importance of this perspective. I have known many such worlds, who have achieved this, and those who have not. Change for them is something they choose and orchestrate and find victory in as accomplishment, not in fear, hoping things will stay the same with no disturbance.

You have the opportunity to lead the changes, to be a part of their orchestration and composition. To be the masters of these, for you have decided that they be so, and how they be so, and for what purpose they be so. Leave behind your timidity and fears and doubts of worth and heritage and authority. They do not serve you and they certainly do not take command of the changes. They only deny, dear ones, your true estate. And they deny the omniscience and the omnipresence and the omnipotence of life. You think you find comfort and safety and peace in this reticence to command your power. Look about you, and your peace and comfort is defined by disease and warring and turmoil and distrust and the abuse of your neighbor and your world. We of these worlds invite you to leave behind these things and enjoy the beauty that lies before you and lies within you.

We do not speak of these matters lightly, for these matters command life and life obeys their command. It does life no honor to abuse it, in a sense, through self-denial and separation and turning a deaf ear and a blind eye. Grab hold of your hearts. Feel your strength. Command clear vision and hold to the truth that lives within you. Accept no shadow as a source for anything but the old ways of ignorance. We stand with you, as we have with many in these times. But how can we stand with you, if you refuse to stand on your own? That is why we are here at this time. And we do welcome the opportunity to dialogue further in this way, should you choose to stand with us as well.