

The New Paradigm

Volume 2

Creating Life

or the Body of Life Sub-series

- Creating Life #1: The next threshold
- Creating Life #2: The body of life that includes all universes
- Creating Life #3: The Body of Life perspective
- Creating Life #4: The illusion that the finite and the infinite are separate realities
- Creating Life #5: The intimacy of the Body of Life with all of its elements
- Creating Life #6: The Body of Life that propels all of creation into its destiny
- Creating Life #7: Concluding this sub-series

This is a series that followed the initial presentation on the New Paradigm. It was presented in these seven consecutive attunements. Janu is the Gatekeeper to all attunements. In this series, he always introduced the Master Noeth Atule. However, his comments are only included if they expand upon the topic of the day.

Creating Life #1: The next threshold

April 28, 1998

NOETH ATULE: Once more we speak on this subject of progressed understanding as model for engagement of that which is to come. We would have you understand at this time that it is routine that a body of understanding have levels or thresholds within it. We are at one such threshold at this time and will embark upon it.

Now then, let us begin in this way. We of the Brotherhood of Progressed Understanding announce our presence to you for the purpose of joining with you in the quest to not only understand life but to create it. This next plateau, or series of presentations, will deal with the creation of life.

Now then, where does one begin with this understanding? It is accomplished by understanding your own creation of your being. Then moving beyond that to beginning to perceive life as the creator of it. For many, this is a departure into an area that is fearsome and overwhelming, for all they are aware of at this time is only the quality of being a part of life. And how can a part of life be the creator of it? Or we should say "a creator of it." There is great fascination with learning of things, gaining understanding, but what do you do with this, dear one? Certainly, become more than a repository of information. We would have you understand at this time that you are awakening into that reality which creates life. And what do we mean by "life," dear one? It is that which expresses, in an ongoing way, the outbreath of the first principle of expression.

We will move you in not only understanding but identity in beingness beyond the confines of the parameters of life to that reality which designs them, to engage the process of the coalescing of the fields of life. The experience moves in the direction of becoming so one with your true nature and the creative principle that you no longer perceive in any way as a separate being. We are entering into the field of the creative principle. This is truly a journey in consciousness. And is one that leaves behind all shadow. The physical body heat you are experiencing indicates the need for a purity of vehicles achieved through a transformation of models of limitation. We will help you with this for, compared to what you have achieved thus far, this is the journey of journeys.

Let us proceed with our next opportunity in this way. You may revisit for review and refinement what has been presented at this time. It will aid you in achieving that which lies ahead. Until we meet again, our brother, I am Noeth Atule, your teacher on these matters.

Creating Life #2: the body of life that includes all universes

June 1, 1998

JANU: Once more we elect to embark upon this series of, as you like to call them, understandings building to a more complete grasp of engagement of that which lies ahead for humanity in embracing its future, its new potentials for exploration and expansion. And, not only that, dear one, but its engagement of the rest of life. We do acknowledge our dear brother, Noeth Atule, and this one has been notified or asked to attend this opportunity and we await his presence and acknowledgement. You are correct that this new level that he is presenting is quite a departure from the normal pursuits of consciousness expansion, but we have every confidence in his ability to convey this part of reality in a meaningful and clear way, useful to those of your association. He draws near at this time and indicates readiness to proceed. And conveys some excitement on his own as to entering this new phase of understanding. This is a step up the ladder of life, dear one. Pay close attention and consider carefully, deep within your being, the nature of his offering at this time.

NOETH ATULE: I am Noeth Atule and embarking upon this new phase, as you put it, of understanding delving into the nature of reality in the area of the creation of life itself. For this to have meaning for those beginning to embrace this possibility, this reality of life, one must have a opening understanding of life itself.

For many, life is the source of everything and is everything. So how does one who is a part of this life that is created embark upon understanding and involvement and contribution in this area of creating itself? You must begin by understanding that life has many levels of reality. When we refer to the creation of life, we refer to the level of your familiarity. There are many levels of life, legitimately called such, that exist far beyond your understanding. Even your greatest concepts of the first cause for your life understanding are not complete in reference to that which is. So then, let us proceed with this understanding that creation of life for the purpose of this discussion is life as you know it and life, even more so, as you currently imagine it. Now then, let us proceed.

The creating of life is handled by a domain of consciousness or reality that extends, and we do not refer to here in terms of distance, but extends in embrace or totality of embrace more inclusively than does your current model of understanding. So what we refer to here as extensions or extendings refers to degrees of inclusiveness or embrace of realities. This reality of which we speak might best be compared, in a limited way for understanding, to the so-called dimensions of your reality understanding, your universe, and their configurations for inclusiveness of their, might we say, subordinate realities and involvement with and awareness of their superior realities, for lack of better phrasing here.

And yes, there is a hierarchy of life and we refer to here another level of hierarchy. Now, understand that this level of which we speak does not exist physically or even dimensionally in your current terms of understanding, but is involved in these because of its inclusive consciousness and the parameters of its existence, giving it a freedom to continue the process of creation of life through the densities. Continue by direct contact and influence and the carrying of its original design and plan for this outcome, this manifestation. Now then, you ask, how does this relate to your current journey and understanding and involvement with life? We would say in this way, that the mastership of--and by that we mean the oneness with--all that you currently embrace, envision, and imagine as being is facilitated by a relationship with this more inclusive reality. You become one with the capabilities of this reality more so than before and therefore consciously become partner with it, its wisdom, its consciousness, in the carrying of what you now call life. You will gain privy to and understanding of not only the creation of life but the ongoingness of its manipulation, assessment, benefit, and interaction with all of its elements.

To embrace, in a beginning way, this larger reality, this more inclusive reality, we would have you consider for a moment its existence, its vitality, its long tradition of being and its connection with grander truth. Your known and imagined universe lies within its domain. And its connection with other realities and universes is accomplished in a way that is beyond your current concepts of connection, for you see universes as separate things, with great distance between them. This reality does not. And it understands, embraces, and resides in a body of life that connects all universes into one consciousness, with so many elements, diversity of being beyond your imagination. What this journey affords you, dear one, is a journey into the body of life on a much more inclusive scale. Your first opportunities, if you will, in making these changes in you is the acknowledgement of the body of life in which all universes exist. This next reality, that contributes to the creation of life as you imagine it, knows this body. Thinks, if you will, as this body. Understands its life essence as this body. And is omnipresent.

As you become familiar with and more identified with this inclusiveness, you will be directed in the understanding and engagement of its processes for creating life and share in and join the many journeys available on that level of involvement with life. This is what is in store in this next grouping in this series.

Creating Life #3: the Body of Life perspective

June 28, 1998 A

NOETH ATULE: As you can perceive, we embark this morning with this element of understanding from the configuration or pattern of the body of life which we referred to in the last meeting. This will be our configuration for a time as we explore this reality and its understanding or, we should say, the understanding of it.

Now then, how does one move about, if you will, in this reality, unlimited by human concepts of engagement? This body of life has always been a part of your existence. Your experience in your dimension is created from it in the sense of subordinate manifestations and their many levels. Its essential nature perceives you as a coalesced energetic representation of thought, in such a way as to yield or emanate light that is natural to its reality. Light being the medium of understanding, communication, and engagement. From the perspective of this body of life, all universes are seen in this way. They express themselves through their light medium of their particular reality. The body of life is a body of light, but not light described in your three dimensional terms. What you are moving into here is life as light, but light that is in its fullness beyond your vocabulary. This is an understanding through experience. In time you will move about, so to speak, in this light body, leaving words behind. This light body allows this, for you are even one with this reality.

Now, maintaining the theme of the creating of life, as we have begun, how does this correspond to this body of light? When you are so affixed or engaged in this reality, you travel, so to speak, back through the corridor of your design through to this reality, awakening your creative pathway. You awaken to the collective true thought nature of this reality and understand that the creation of what you currently understand as life embraces all of the levels of life honoring each one's contribution to the creation, intimately aware of it, sensitive to all of the interconnectedness of its many aspects and paths of expression. The three dimensional perspective of action and doingness to create or manipulate your current reality does not translate well to the dynamics and the vitality of this body of light. For doingness and creating in this reality is not what you call action. It is more in the direction of holding a thought that would seem eternally, to your perspective. Only a thought in this reality holds infinite possibilities, as does any true singularity.

The purpose of our journey to this extent or degree, in light of this New Paradigm series, prepares one for the magnitude and the eternal nature of ongoingness that will be revealed in this next wave of life opportunity. It helps one appreciate perspective and purpose for that which seems abstract and unattainable. These processes are products of the body of life's singularity thought. The growing challenge and opportunity for life in manifestation will be to engage its true nature while involved in the many expressions of it. And, our dear brother, this speaks of the collective consciousness of the bodies of life of which your journey is an element of contribution, experience, and assimilation. So, you see, even the body of life is awakening to its own potential, through you. You are its progeny through its creative process and its progeny is its self. And that, even that, is not the complete understanding.

Creating Life #4: The illusion that the finite and the infinite are separate realities

July 31, 1998 A

NOETH ATULE: What we have just demonstrated to you in the symbolic form of a delicate ornamented teacup and saucer was to illustrate and bring to your attention the reality, from our point of view, of the delicacy and precise design, yet nurturing and invigorating reality, of these truths of life. They represent the finest collection of considered understandings by those who embrace life and create life with a fineness that allows for infinite variety of nuance and flow and change, as well as commitment beyond your concept of endurance and projected outcome. The nature of these discourses that we have embarked upon is such. And these are only a portion of the totality of these understandings. That which we, as Noeth Atule, offer are expressions of the composite of these diverse elements of life, thought, and understanding.

The future, as you put it, is held in profound joy, lightness of being, delicacy of design, and completeness of outcome, while at the same time allowing for infinite variations to achieve it. For the outcome already exists in the profound potential of life and these journeys into progressed understanding, that expand your awareness that seems at times to be stretched beyond your belief, are well established in a field of life that includes far more. The journey you have undertaken is the embrace of the infinite by what has been seen to point as the finite, discovering the truth that both are one reality and not separate one from the other.

How then do seeming dichotomies merge into one truth across the spectrum of life? They do so by virtue of their originating nature, which existed as their cause for being. So, when stretching your understanding to include these many truths, do so realizing that they are not separate from you in origin, but they are you and you are they. The Brotherhoods of Life and Light do not exist in a far off place away from you, but they live in life, as do you. We would have you understand this, as you embrace the truth and your full potential, as do we. Separation is an illusion but diversity of life is not. No longer do you need to justify diversity from the point of view of being separate one from another. These journeys on which we embark endeavor to reveal this and encourage true self-realization. Can you not see that if this is true, life creates after its own being? Life creates life, in the fullest and most complete understanding, for what else is there, dear one, but life? This discourse, at this time, was seen to be needed to bridge the seeming gulf between individuality and the completeness of oneness. Consider this, our brother, and the next communication should be more comfortable and natural feeling when we join once more. Thank you for this opportunity. We are your brothers and always have been.

Creating Life #5: the intimacy of the Body of Life with all of its elements

August 31, 1998

JANU: I am Janu speaking and addressing once more this opportunity to present to you and the world, which is of course our larger intent, this series of discourses on what is to come, presented by our brother Noeth Atule. We await his arrival and share in his enthusiasm and expectancy for the future. What we have before us in this presentation is a pronounced acceleration in defining the course of this journey into a new life. It is not that we speak for him, but share in his thrust of understanding.

NOETH ATULE: We present at this time, this morning in your time, a continuation of this, from your point of view, global grasp of that which is the basic nature of life being created and its process. The body of life we refer to in the previous discourses acknowledges and awaits our embrace of its reality in the understanding of a component of its nature being you, dear one. For this does serve its intent and purpose, its function, for ongoingness.

Now, embrace at this time the property, or properties, of supporting the life created thus far. This takes place within the confines of its beingness and we would have you begin to experience the degree of its intimacy with all that exists within its field of reality. The movement in this direction of consciousness for the finite, individual mind, is the transition unlike any other, for you enter into mind of reality that is equally intimate or aware with all elements of life that have their ongoingness within it. Certain elements of reality must be accepted and allowed into your perception to begin to appreciate life from this perspective, that being: all pervasive light; pure joy; ongoingness that knows neither time nor distance as a controlling factor in experience; clarity in intimacy that is immediate and direct; no sense of limited capability for experience or expression; the oneness reality that knows that all of these elements of life that make up your universe are its own beingness; a symphony of understanding and perception that includes all elements of consciousness developing and interacting with all of life; a peace as source of this that unites profound stillness with the dynamics of many life realities; a body of life without boundaries save those it chooses to acknowledge; a knowingness of all understanding that expands as all life progresses; and an uncomplicated, unpretentious simplicity of self-awareness that is best understood by the example of the purity and openness of the mind of a child, but a child that is all life.

We would have you begin your journey into intimacy on this level with this reality in this way. We will journey further in opening this experience for you, for it is necessary to understand and participate in the journey of life as it will unfold. There is so much more to reveal in building your body of understanding and consciousness expansion, but the journey has begun, dear one, and will continue. We thank you for your attention this morning and welcome further journeys and the service to life they will render.

Creating Life #6: The Body of Life that propels all of creation into its destiny October 2, 1998 A JANU: We have before us this afternoon the one who speaks on this subject. He has transcended many levels of life and makes this offering of understanding that others may be so prepared to do so as well. It is the nature of the truth of life, and those who live it, to expand their achievements and opportunities to others for they understand, and live, that all of life and its elements are one living system. And it is the nature of this system of life that this be so. We await his arrival for this attunement connection and will proceed at that time.

NOETH ATULE: Now then, let us focus our attention on the matter at hand, that being the continuation of this series of understanding and experiencing, and therefore embodying, the true nature of the body of life as it is and understood by those who live it. We being one such. This body of life, then, that we have referred to in recent discourses, is that which propels all of creation of your universe into its destiny. Now the destiny your beloved has referred to recently is in harmony with destiny on this scale, for if you--meaning humanity--could but understand and accept that you are at once the embodiment of the potential and the realities of an entire universe. You have been imbued with this from the body of life and that consciousness. It was not intended from the beginning that you remain consciously aware of it in all its ramifications and composite structure. It was intended there be a path of discovery and experience, not just for your edification but for the expansion of the universe into its next stages, if you will, of experience. Understand, even a universe has a collective reality of experience, of knowingness, of identity, of over all contribution to the body of life. And, we have not discussed this yet but may in due course, that body of life passes on that gained by it to yet a larger reality.

But let us then keep our attention upon our current focus and the rest will come in order. The body of life, then, nurtures your universe similarly to the nurturing of your existence by the source of life that is your universe. And by universe, we mean the collective supreme consciousness for that collective reality. Life on the scale that we are discussing does not exist in its reality as a blank sheet of paper, so to speak. It is rich with potential, ongoingness, and diversity. Now, to understand and appreciate and, in time, experience this diversity in its full measure, is a bit overwhelming for one of its elements, meaning the human mind. For the body of life at once is collectively aware and individually aware of its elements, simultaneously. You may ask, then, "Why explore in these discourses to humanity consciousness and reality on that scale?" For this reason, dear one: that growing in the awareness of connection to the beginnings of understanding, this concept opens your consciousness to, as foundation for acceptance, larger realities within your current sphere, demonstrating that what lies before you as seeming near impossible challenge to many, is a path of expansion that has existence and tradition that is larger still, giving you an opportunity to draw strength from this and centering and focus as you proceed.

This discoursing is not given randomly and without purpose. We would have you know this. The pattern of the reality of the body of life, that is all universes, is the direction for humanity to engage, yielding a growing sense of oneness and connection with the rest of life within the sphere of their current awareness. Many have yet to experience true oneness, one with another. There still lingers a dominance of separation, rather than separation being one element of a larger unified truth. Truth in the larger sense never denies its constituent realities but holds them together in a sanity that gives purpose to all of them, and mutual benefit.

So the theme, dear one, of today's journey is to embrace that which you are in the same manner that that which you are embraces the body of life, bringing a link or bridge of consciousness, a vehicle, into play. Of clear continuity of thought and knowingness and integrity of being that leaves you with a sense of completeness not achieved without it. When observing the life paths of others that may seem so different than your own, see them as included in the consciousness and an integral part of the body of life. And, as you open to this, you can tangibly connect with this as being your body of life as well. Old patterns long cherished as foundations of understanding, that are true and supportive within a smaller world of understanding, must be allowed to expand themselves into greater inclusiveness of the nature of life. Allow yourself some freedom to experience this more fully and we will continue to move forward into that that is.

Creating Life #7: Concluding this sub-series

October 29, 1998 A

NOETH ATULE: We come at this time to continue with this series of understandings preparing the way for fuller and more effective embrace of the new, to you, frontiers of experience and possibility on your immediate horizon. We choose this morning in your time to discuss further the significance of the universal impact on your range of understanding to embrace the new life possibilities of the teachings of the Body of Life.

The Body of Life understanding sets the stage for engaging the new life experiences awaiting you from a perspective that helps guarantee a minimum of reversals and loss of continuity and connectedness on the journey, for it gives you a frame of reference to understand each element of the journey to come, that your experiences not move into impractical and unrelated tangents of fantasy but you remain connected, nourished, clear in your experiencing that part of life you choose to embrace. The Body of Life is omnipresent and it is the life nature in which your universe resides, in which your Creator resides as creator of a universe.

Understand this, dear ones, that divinity is and your understanding and embrace of it is not limited to its reality that is the nature of your universe, for it is larger than that and eternally ongoing in its depth and reality. The purpose of the Body of Life discourses is to open a door of understanding and acceptance of the relationship of your previous concepts of divinity to larger divinity still.

It is true, needless to say, that one so conscious does not engage oneself in any endeavor in the same way as before. Your preference or choice of relationship with any endeavor may or may not remain physical and visible in your spectrum. But it is by choice, dear one, and the authority of consciousness that commands the choice. Expansion of consciousness does not restrict one from any life element previously experienced. It does, however, by choice change the relationship with it. These journeys, these many journeys of understanding which we have embarked upon and are yet to come, free you to engage the fuller life with the authority of understanding and the true power of who you are and your connection with all of life.

The Body of Life understanding will now move into a relationship with these presentations that will be occasioned, from time to time, that will be a backdrop, a reference point to many discussions and points of interest. It has been established as a reference field for understanding. And we have made you aware that there are fields of life larger still. But much to be accomplished in the fields of exploration already presented. Gradually you will become conscious on the Body of Life level and understand your journeys from this reference. This reference will give you, when achieved truly, the true power of conviction as perceived by others opening to new possibilities with some uncertainty, for your aura will emanate through the lowerings of consciousness into your density this level of divinity for others to sense the "hem of the garment" that is the larger life.