

The New Paradigm

An Ongoing Series

Volume I

FIRST ELEMENTS

- ◆ New models of understanding of the truth of life
- ◆ Coming paradigm shifts
- ◆ #1 Transpersonal remembrance of the code of life within the being
- ◆ #2 Common Ground: Connectedness and Communication
- ◆ #3 Zero Point Understanding
- ◆ #4 & 5 The relationship between sentience and creation
- ◆ #6 The Evolution of Life
- ◆ #7 Potential and its outcome through manifestation
- ◆ #8 The Identity Threshold
- ◆ #9 Partnership with the Earth
- ◆ #10 Simultaneous Embrace of All of Life (Collective Consciousness)
- ◆ #11 Reconstitution into Light Being
- ◆ #12 The Co-existence of Completion and Beginning
- ◆ #13 The Reality of Oneness
- ◆ #14 The Path of Completion
- ◆ #15 The Essential Nature of the True Magic of Life

Janu is the Gatekeeper to all attunements. After the fourth in this series, the Master Noeth Atule was the main presenter. He was always introduced by Janu; however, Janu's comments are only included if they expand upon the topic of the day.

New models of understanding of the truth of life

December 9, 1996

JANU: We of the Brotherhood have joined you this evening for some dialogue and preparation for a coming event in somewhat short order, you see. This event we speak of comes at a time when there is a gathering of angels and others intent on commissioning the coming into this new year in a way not perceived by too many. This co-joining we speak of happens once a trimester period. This new year, dear one, of your calendar is one that will bring or herald a shift in priorities in the coming opportunities for those who would serve in the light. There is, and will be, a new order of commissioned host, workers in the light, if you will. There is, as we might put, a changing of the guard. Be prepared to embrace a new progression of contacts each bringing their specialty, their focal strength to this new period.

Now then, let us continue with this understanding, if we may. We see coming into view, into involvement one who would suggest that the models of perception be changed somewhat, allowing for new plateaus of understanding or appreciation of the realities of existence, you see. This one who comes at this time brings with him the authority to do so, dear one. Your task or opportunity will be to embrace this understanding, these new dynamics or dimensions in perception of the realities of existence and help others see as well. The models of perception of your common understanding have served their purpose well as a bridging and platform in consciousness to step into newer understandings for you. This one who comes, dear one, is one you have known in what you would call your past. He is Andromedan and lowers his frequency, if you will, even this term will eventually be supplanted with another, once the bridge is crossed into the brighter and less limited view, you see. However, he lowers his frequency at this time, dipping in and out of, so to speak, your ability to perceive. To begin this process of expanded awareness, your preparation at this time in the structure of your fields of vitality and consciousness is to make this possible, you see.

This movement in models of perception of the so-called inner life and its structure is a universal one, dear one. Many will be called, or tapped on the shoulder in this way, if you will, to open to these larger possibilities, these larger models of understanding. Not everyone is comfortable with change, especially in those areas that seem to require much faith or trust in the unseen. You will come to know this one who comes at this time through an ongoing series of lowerings of these understandings, this new model of perception. There will be built a trust and a broadening base of understanding. We will assist at this time in your preparation.

JR: I acknowledge this one, my brother Janu, and the Brotherhood of Light. And welcome this opportunity of expanded knowingness and serving its availability and the perception of it to others as possible. Thank you for this opportunity. And I choose to proceed.

JANU: It is good that you do so, dear one, and we shall proceed for our course is set into, as we have promised, grander adventures, have we not? These models are not generally known, dear one, in your world but they are needed, for when embraced and perceived correctly, will fill in the blanks, the missing spaces as the consciousness raises through the current models and unanswered questions arise. Such as it is with all models of understanding, dear one, as the aspiring consciousness embraces them and moves through them. None of these models are the end of understanding, are the plateau of completion. It is time to mature through the current ones, you see. Be alert as these understandings unfold.

And so it is, dear one, that we initiate this journey this evening. We are your brothers and are the Brotherhood of Light embracing this opportunity at this time.

Coming paradigm shifts

January 14, 1997 B

JANU: I am here this evening at your request and my desire as well, you see. For we come at this time to bring news of the approach of an influence in the life that will bring much joy and happiness and reward. This influence we speak of comes at this time when is needed "marching orders," if you will, by so many. So many have asked, "What should I do? What is my purpose? Who am I? Why am I here?"

The rallying cry, dear one, comes from one who knows the difference between folly or foolhardiness and purposeful endeavor. This one knows the pulse and heartbeat of the desires of the lives of so many at this time. This one that speaks with a counsel, a wisdom that is familiar with, experienced in, the bringing in of ages. He is known as an enlightened one, one who speaks the truth that leads all questions in the direction of their fulfillment.

Now then, let us examine what we speak of. This evening's discourse will prepare you for the impact of this understanding on the complete being, all levels, you see. We have spoken earlier of this Andromedan, the Knower. The perception of his approach by many will vary somewhat depending upon their ability to embrace. We spoke of new paradigms of understanding, of perception, for new truths--new levels of truth. Many would perceive paradigm as some structured and complex system of perception and processing. These paradigms that will come, dear one, carry their power to embrace more truth through their seed quality, as primary principals of perception and embrace. There will be twelve such paradigms, each coming on the cusp of your twelve houses or signs, what you call your zodiac. These paradigms of understanding or perception must be grown into. The essential nature of your current paradigms is a connecting point to the essential nature of these. Complexities of your current models of understanding will lead you a merry chase, for as long as you choose, while attempting this new embrace.

How this will unfold is that all of the paradigms are in place at this time. However, the opening of the door on each will begin to a degree and then increase and increase, through each zodiacal period, you see. This will begin in Jupiter, in the first house, and in March, this very year, dear one. The Andromedan has decreed this be so. At the full moon, in that time frame, it will begin and continue for years to come.

One would do well to ponder the realities of paradigms of understanding. Such paradigms fuel scientific research, religious thought, human social behavior, the economics of living, not just financial, you see, natural order for purposes of surviving on the Earth. And the relationship of human reality to the orders of the universe. Yes, even the models of understanding of the components, if you will, of the human experience, the bodies and such. The dimensions of life, the hierarchies. All of these paradigms are about to change and take on new, deeper, and more profound reality in understanding. Nothing will be left untouched.

It is about to happen, dear one. And will be unnoticed by many in the beginning for the doorways will be opened slightly and will open further each year. This process will complete itself, for the most part, by the year 2014, give or take, as they say. Much work to do during this period. The first paradigm will include a new understanding of the reality of the power of forgiveness.

We conclude, at this time, for this evening's discourse. Much to consider here, do you not agree? We will return to this subject a number of times, as we prepare for this arrival. It influences us as well. Greetings, my brother. And be well as we continue our grand adventure together. Namaste.

Transpersonal remembrance of the code of life within the being

February 24, 1997

JANU: We would like to address this morning the subject of transpersonal remembrance of the code of life within the being, in the sense of those structures that not only allow for the manifestation of the crystallized experience, if you will, but the pathways for change and evolution as well. These codes are inherent within the matrices of not only the genetic structure within the genetic codes but within the principle of life that even marks the territories, so to speak, in the vast way of diverse shifting of patterns. This code is the blueprint for restructuring as the desire for experience shifts its focus. These geometric patterns described in the current literature of interest are alterable from the perspective of the seed code of causal life.

What does this all suggest, then, dear one? That to be seen or perceived in the quest or pursuit of the revealing of these structures, these building blocks of creation, is the code of life that even allows these, dear one. These structures of current pursuit are described in many different ways in other realities, yet have their common basis in the code of life of which we speak. This code of life is a common source for diverse realities.

The code is not recognized as a series of structures or elements, but as a singularity reality, with unlimited potential for any creation, allowing the subsequent patterns that also allow the creations desired. This seed or code of life is accessible in the core nature of every life flow including your own, dear one. From its perspective, the understanding of these structures of manifestation will be embraced with an understanding not available from the other direction, if you will.

Limit not, then, your pursuit of understanding these structures to the perspective of the structures themselves, you see, but from the seed code of life singularity from which all proceeds. Be, then, the singularity in your focus, even in your identity, dear one. This is your true being, of which we speak so often. It is a structureless, unmanifested, pure beingness. This reality of the perception of the truth of life in all creation is the most complete, dear one. It is not limited to the five Platonic solids or any particular universe or dimension, if you will. From this perspective, the true desire of creation is known and is the journey's end and the beginning, even for those involved in reverse creation exploration. All else is the object of the thrust of life. From your perspective this is the only unalterable reality, for its nature is without limit. All of these structures of life being examined are alterable.

An adjunct study of interest would be one that pursues the possibilities that exist when these structures are altered. But that is still the mechanical aspect of creation and a reflection of the power of the precipitation of these arrangements or structures, born of unlimited being and its thrust for life expression. In an instant, dear one, one can be that purity of being but it is not achieved through the mechanism of these structures. As you examine the structure of the building, what do you know about its builder? Only that aspect of the interest or thrust for creation in that particular aspect of the totality of an unlimited creator.

The goal here, dear one, is the reality of unlimited beingness in the midst of limitation. This link, this continuation of the line of consciousness, allows for exploration in your world without the need for repeating of experiences by virtue of lack of connected consciousness and therefore lack of your identity as the creator of your experience, you see.

Common Ground: Connectedness and Communication

March 31, 1997

JANU: I am Janu speaking to you this morning and addressing this inquiry into the second in the series of twelve understandings that bring to focus in the mind these systems of perception and engagement into new possibilities and thresholds of understanding. {Editor's Note: This eventually expanded to more than 12}

The second paradigm, as you put it, comes to us at this time under the auspices, if you will, of our trusted advisor, the Andromedan, also known as Noeth-atule, "atule" being a carryover of a tradition of his origin as keeper, protector, and source of the flames or thresholds of the light of understanding. "Atule" then being his recognized office and tradition of authority.

The second understanding in the series, dear one, has to do with the models of shared understanding and knowingness that all races, all beings, find shared and common understanding through. This model, then, speaks of a communication medium that assimilates the thought or vibrational patterns and understands them, becomes one with them instantly and so completely, as if they were originated in this common medium, you see. The impressions of another are so assimilated and they become common understanding within this reality. Embracing this truth, this reality, brings you shared understanding as if these patterns of others were your own. It is how we communicate, dear one, and supports functioning as a group mind. There are collectives of consciousness that focus in one interest or another, but this does not isolate them from each other. This field or reality was created for this purpose, at a time when the thresholds of new reality no longer accessed by current paradigms came on the scene through the evolution of consciousness, you see, and it was realized that this model would facilitate the crossing through the unknown territory between thresholds of reality and possibilities. Understand, then, this model is not the final word or representation of this accomplishment.

To embrace this reality in your current models of understanding and awareness, the first paradigm of connectedness, acceptance, is implemented, setting the stage for the acceptance of your truth and the truth of others, finding common ground and understanding, intimacy if you will, in this field of universal synergism of thought. This field is threshold specific, but essential for the rest of the elements for completeness of embrace of this next universal threshold of life. For this reality will be your gateway, if you will, into implementation of the ten remaining realities or models of reality-perception. Without these first two, access to the remaining is not possible, you see. Master these in terms of initial or beginning experience and adaptation of your capacity to perceive.

There is a hierarchy in this next threshold that awaits you and knows of your coming, for they have mastered this transition and, having done so, already are in a position in their evolution of oneness with you. The hierarchy of which you are somewhat familiar is not separate from this next threshold but operates in your current environment to prepare you. It is their service and their honor to do so. As you engage this new level of embrace, you will meet new brothers in the light and recognize their counterpart in your current associations, you see. This term "a New Age" you have adopted is only a shadow understanding, dear one, for in this truth all will seem new.

We will continue with this unfoldment at the proper time. Develop your embrace or acceptance of these first two. Noeth-atule, the Andromedan, acknowledges your service and all who bring others with them into the Light. That will do for now. Until we visit this once more, I remain your brother and companion. Namaste, our brother.

Zero Point Understanding

April 29, 1997

JANU: Yes, good evening, brother. I am Janu speaking and you have interpreted correctly. Noeth-Atule speaks this evening in a manner according to his design and style. We await his approach, his coming in, so to speak, at this time.

NOETH ATULE: Yes, good evening, brother. I am your friend and brother, Noeth-Atule, bringing to you at this time the third in the series of releases of these structures, or models as you put it, for embracing the new realities, the new potentials of expression and manifestation arriving shortly. Let us get on now with this presentation, if you will.

It comes at a time when there is sore need for such in your world. This third model then bespeaks of the notion of frequency shifting and blending for the purpose of assimilating information, entrance into or acceptance by hierarchies and realities yet outside your grasp, your awareness. This paradigm or model, if you will, is best described as what some have called the Music of the Spheres, but far more than this, you see. For this is the faculty for riding the currents, the waves, as one with these, on which all life continues its ongoingness. These first two models deal with connectedness of life, far more completeness in the realization of complete oneness. This third model, dear one, is the simultaneous multiple reality, non-verbal and at times image free, seemingly unrestricted ascendance into the essential natures of all creation. Through this opportunity or model of engagement one can experience across dimensions and universes with an intimacy that transcends observer and observed. Yes, the true zero point of non-differentiation that is one with all differentiation. And, as a result, conforms with any creation.

The third model is zero point understanding. No longer a piece of creation, or aspect, exploring and observing another aspect, you see, but the essential nature that is at once the nature of all aspects. Each element of creation expands into manifestation from this zero point. Once again the need for identity shifting from the perspective of the element of creation you perceive yourself to that of the universal zero point. You have experienced a measure of this on two or three previous occasions. The defining point of creation that is without definition, the source of the thrusts of the waves of potential for the ongoingness of life. Through this reality, dear one, you return to the Godhead, if you will put it that way, and experience all creation as creator, in perfect harmony and oneness with all of life. In this new understanding, consciousness expands as creator no longer limited to creation. You will, for the first time, understand your authority for being. The reality of true freedom and unlimited capacity for expression and understanding.

This is sufficient for this introduction to this essential nature. You are correct. The potential for consciousness expansion has moved beyond all previous models for engagement of life. You are returning to your true nature. I will withdraw slowly at this time to allow your uninterrupted consideration of what has been shown you. I am Noeth-Atule, the Andromedan, guardian and messenger of this understanding. Good evening, brother.

The relationship between sentience and creation

May 30, 1997

JANU: The call has been made to our brother, the Andromedan, for this process to continue. We await his reply.

In the meantime we would suggest a review of sorts of the first three elements. The first being the universal connectedness or oneness reality that supports life. The second being the field of thought that unifies understanding and conveys such instantly and completely to all life so attuned, you see. The third being that element which establishes the true core reality, or zero point if you will, perspective, understanding, and embrace of all realities. From this essential nature, the essential nature of all creation is understood.

NOETH ATULE: Good evening, brother. I am Noeth Atule speaking and for this evening's discourse, as you have requested the fourth element of understanding, we will proceed with the fourth and fifth as a package as they are a parallel understanding and connected in such a way as to understand one element, the other element must be addressed or sampled, if you will.

These fourth and fifth elements come to you at this time, focusing primarily in the area of sentience, that condition in life forms or consciousness that registers the ongoingness of life with a perception that overviews the experience, you see, or that creation of interest. The fourth and fifth element, then, have to do with the understanding of the relationship between sentience and creation. Now, in its rudimentary form, sentience creates as well; however, not with the full command for outcome, you see. The fourth and fifth, then, act as one reality or unit of creator and creation. Through this understanding, you will begin to have the foundation and perspective to embrace the relationship of the creator of all that is with all of its creation. Understanding, then, initiating imperative of original thought and assimilation of outcome, and that this process is a continuing loop, simultaneous in reality and that initiating thought is in constant flux and unfolding and, if you will, being updated by the assimilation of the outcome of the creation of the thought design, you see. This process might be seen as a complete loop reality, no beginning and no end, so to speak. An ongoing expansion of thought light.

And now we come to the crux of the matter, if you will. And that is, that this looping reality describes you and all sentient beings, you see. This is the essential key of the understanding of the fourth and fifth elements to be observed as an integrated dynamic of elements of understanding. What then does this afford the individual or the collective that consciously embraces and embodies this reality? The truth of this, dear one, is that as you become more conscious of this reality, of the true nature of your being, so you become more conscious as universal creator. You begin to share consciously your purpose, your role, and your destiny as integrated being, one with all of life and all of original thought. Both are ongoing and both are one and both are omnipresent and coexist as one. And so do you, dear one, with the true nature of life, for you are that nature and so is all you perceive.

This set of elements more clearly describes the thrust of the new wave of potential and the essential nature of the collective reality of consciousness unfoldment for sentient life.

The Evolution of Life

June 28, 1997

NOETH ATULE: This sixth understanding in the series comes to you prepared from those who proclaim this New Age, you see. The sixth understanding embraces the idea, the reality, that all life evolves. Now, this approach is not new to you on the surface, dear one; however, there are deeper, more profound, more far reaching understandings to this reality. Evolution of life heralds a merge into realities that you would yet begin to recognize as life. You have a tendency to perceive evolution of life as an empirical relationship or activity. It is not limited to such, dear one. Life can evolve in ways that seem to have no apparent connection to the previous manifestation. No roots, no logical progression here, you see. For what is evolving, dear one, in this understanding is not the forms or even the relationships of creation but true life itself.

How then does one relate to this understanding of true life from the perception of forms and creation? This is accomplished, dear one, by embracing, expanding into, pure consciousness. The forms of life or creation, dear one, are merely expressions of this consciousness. Consciousness that is, and is aware, and does not limit itself to linear evolution as described by your current understanding. It is not a one point in space or time, or even energy fields, reality. It does not have finite borders or limits. It does, however, experience waves and currents and flows of intensities and nuances of awareness throughout its reality.

This trueness of life is essential in understanding for one to begin to appreciate the intelligence, the consciousness, as the essential field of creation. Evolution of life from this perspective of understanding compresses within itself, of itself, into coalescences of the waves of potential for creation, the creation whose outcome exhibits the cyclic return. This journey in consciousness and in understanding leaves much yet to be explored, for in doing so the human point of view must be transcended to greater degrees. And we will do this together, dear one, in due course, for your true nature, as you have referred to, embodies this reality.

Potential and its outcome through manifestation

July 29, 1997

NOETH ATULE: The seventh understanding comprises the reality for potential and its outcome through manifestation as described by the countless sojourns of life. Understanding potential, then, in this way brings forth the opportunity for participation, fulfillment, and the journey of completion. "Completion of what?" you might ask. Completion of the journey, of the desire--in its form of desire, of the source of the waves of the potential of life, to give the body of its reality a theater for wisdom gained within the confines of your limited parameters of understanding.

A source of all life is birthing. You are its gestation. And these waves of potential are the thrusts for completion of this gestation. There is, beyond all this, new life unrecognizable in its completion by elements of gestation. However, what lies beyond the birthing? It is opportunity for beingness yet to be understood. All of the universes, all of the realities are part of this embryo development, if you will, the birthing is yet to come.

The seventh understanding, or paradigm, for understanding life is that life beyond your universes is moving towards its birthing and no element of life is separate from this. If you think you are loved by the source of your life, know this with certainty, dear one, that love itself will emerge into a new plateau, a new reality, beyond all that exists, that created and develops this process at this time. There is love beyond any understanding, embraced by any reality in the embryonic process. Even love evolves, dear one.

And here is the message for this go-round of understanding. Much to be explored here and understood and embraced. The purpose of life continues to unfold. And we have seen this and know that it is so. Consider this understanding in your explorations into the truth of life. Good morning, our brother. We are Noeth Atule, bringers of the light of the truth of love yet to be fulfilled.

The Identity Threshold

August 29, 1997

NOETH ATULE: The eighth model or paradigm comes at this time in order that we may present a vehicle or platform as home ground or familiar territory, if you will, a base that establishes a common point of return or reference for your explorations into these new possibilities. What we describe here, dear one, is your identity threshold from which you will no longer regress. This identity might best be described, initially, as being one of essential light. The physical references you enjoy at this time, as point of reference for your being, for your identity, and for your engagements with your current possibilities, will be left behind in the sense of that is who you are.

Once you enter into this new level, you no longer identify as human physical reality. This does not mean or suggest you are now separate from this. For all creation is yours to explore, dear one. But it does mean, however, you are no longer limited to this and, even while exploring your former estate, you no longer do so identified by it. The emergence into this reality, whereupon this identity becomes yours and your base or reference for relating to life, does not even require that you, at this time, leave your physical embodiment. But it does mean you are no longer limited by it and any fears or doubts as to its survival become irrelevant in the larger identification, you see.

This new reference point for identification of your being will be necessary for you to have the freedom to express and engage in the new possibilities. You will find that this plateau of reality, of being, is well populated, if you will. You ask, "Does this plateau have a name?" It does, dear one. Its name is the Fifth Understanding or Density, from your point of view. We prefer to refer to this as a light level or vibrational pattern or light energetic threshold. It is a degree of awakening into the embrace of stable reality yet evolving. In this reality, dear one, the identification with the human physical will no longer satisfy the urge to know and be who you are. We have referred to this plateau with your brother, Janu, as the Fifth Understanding.

Needless to say, there will be more to explore in this area as we proceed with these opportunities for elevation of your awareness and acceptance. The guardians who attend at this time do so...for your awareness do they reveal themselves. For this level of understanding, emergence, and engagement is an initiation or a key threshold into the Family of Life. Your preparation for this is essential and the requirements for engagement are offered to ensure your success. We will in time come to find familiarity, recognition, and a conscious connection with each other. When this is achieved, dear one, this Fifth Understanding, this shift in identity, you will know your family of life without interruption.

Partnership with the Earth

September 26, 1997

NOETH ATULE: Now then, let us examine this ninth understanding as we see it. And it has to do with your world's emergence into this new reality, this new adventure, and yours and the many relationships of sentient beings with it, you see. Most of you see and relate to your world as one of physical properties, position, dimension. We would have you understand it in this way. Your connection as a life being with this body you call Earth is your partner by virtue of this connection into this new understanding. The intelligence, the memory and the wisdom of your world, achieved through eons of time, is not inferior in any way, dear one, to your own. Your embrace of and growing respect for this connection in reality of sentience is essential to your emergence as well. To have the opportunity to emerge into new life possibilities as integrated partner with a world and all of its life forms is to be cherished and the depths of its richness embraced. For understand this, dear one, that your emergence as being is the path of your world as well, or any world, for that matter. For a world is an emerging collective of consciousnesses and consciousness. It is the order of life.

Those who track their progression of consciousness without this understanding do so from a limited point of view and therefore limit their progression. Allow yourself the intimacy of being as your world and looking into the quest for life, for expansion, for embrace, as partner with it. Become one in this. Not losing your trueness but expanding it. No longer seeing your world involvement and connection as that of two separate realities, one plodding about on the surface of the other. Those who detract from the well-being and the consciousness development of your world, do so in their own reality as well.

You have chosen to make this world connection for its benefit and your own. So when you choose to reach for the future, reach for new understanding, do so through the body of life of which you are a part, and you will come to understand the body of life, the universe, and yourself in a new and fuller way, more complete than before. Think you, then, that the true being of your world is only interested in its own evolution? It too embraces other realities, other worlds, and other systems of life. This experience and reality will afford you the experience of the new family of life, its nature, its beingness, and its possibilities, as you have not seen before.

Your path into the future, dear one, into all that we have brought you and will bring you, includes this understanding. Your love for, your service to and with, your understanding of your world will open your consciousness, your perception of life, in new ways. Do you not see that the embrace we describe prepares you and your world for new adventure into other worlds and other universes? We invite you in this direction of understanding and embrace.

Simultaneous Embrace of All of Life (Collective Consciousness)

Oct. 29, 1997 B

NOETH ATULE: There lies before you an opportunity of such magnitude as yet to be seen in your memory, in your world, should we say, and in your race or species. That which is about to unfold upon you and in you, should you accept this, is the revelation of the magnitude of life itself. This tenth understanding is the approach for embrace to have movement in this direction of this reality. We proceed slowly at this point, at this juncture, to carefully present this opportunity.

The hierarchies of life, dear one, the structures and realities of creation, worlds and universes, dimensions as well, cultures and species, are one life. This one-life reality is more complete in the fullness of its counterpart to what you refer to as consciousness, more vital in its presence. It is collective being, collective configuration of all of creation. What we are suggesting here, dear one, is the reality of entering into the simultaneous embrace of all of life.

This we speak of is the body and being of that which is. No aspect of life sees life in this way of its own dominion, you see. Even individuality has its limitation, no matter what level of that reality you address. It is possible to embrace life no longer identified as individual. All of your universes, all of your imagined realities exist and have their being in a collective presence that is pure being.

Now then, dear one, what of this understanding? This understanding sets example and some criteria for truly and fully embracing your true being. For even the trueness of your being extends beyond individuality. This tenth understanding centers around the reality that exists beyond all individuality of your previous models of understanding. In a larger sense, dear one, this collective whole of pure beingness is who you are. Your perspective, then, your appreciation of your journey opportunities is no longer limited to individual evolution. You begin at this point in your journey to relate to and identify with that which brings all individual identity into the one body of Life.

This will be a challenge for many, not only to understand but to accept. The ninth understanding alludes to this, as a journey beyond individuality into world consciousness. Beyond that, dear one, lies the consciousness of all creation. The larger truth, dear one, is that inclusive expansion leaves nothing behind. To include more of the rest of life all is added, none is forsaken. Many will suggest their understanding of what they call "God" explains all of this. We suggest it does not, for that understanding does not embrace them being that. It is still defined by individuality and separation.

This course of awakening, of which we speak, provides opportunity to embrace, in a new way, the old model, the old understanding. The twelfth understanding, yet to come, will shed more light on this and you will understand the need for this beginning look, you see. This is the path to complete and true oneness.

Reconstitution into Light Being

November 28, 1997

NOETH ATULE: There comes before you at this time that needed to proceed to make this paradigm shift to embrace the new world to come. This shift will reconstitute your vehicles of expression with these various levels of reality of which they are borne. For many, this reconstitution process has begun, even if only on the physical level. There is much talk of DNA restructuring. This is subordinate to the more refined patterns of design that guide these changes when the individual consciousness is prepared to receive them. This journey, dear one, embraces everyone but does not require compliance for the world's realities that have been established to this point will continue for those yet to grow into them, you see.

We of this collective understanding have walked this path eons, in your reckoning, ago on worlds that have come and gone before yours began. Yes, there are adventures in understanding that transcend greatly the one you are facing at the moment. Within this eleventh understanding there will come, through further presentations and examination and explanations, into the dynamics of the many levels of reconstitution within the being. Your so-called energy centers or vortices, called chakras, will rearrange in their internal structure, their patterning, and their alignments, and yes, there will be the magnifying or increase in vitality and function of those yet to be realized by many. There will be color shifts for those who can see them. They will expand in what you perceive as size and hue and luminance. They will begin to communicate more effectively with each other and with other realities. The merging, then you see, into conscious connection with the collective of life.

What is transpiring here, dear one, is the movement into light being, to some degree consciously and to other degrees super-consciously. The other elements of your being of which we speak, from the elemental to the super-conscious, will realize integration into pure light being, affording transcendent engagement not limited by the current human perception of travel, time and space, the duality of your current frame of reference, you see. This journey is for those who leave behind their fears and doubts of self-worth, their limited perception of possibilities and ability to engage them. For how can those ruled by fears and doubts lead others out of the darkness, you see? There will be those who defend the darkness. Do not condemn them for doing so. Their time will come as surely as yours has at this time, for none are lost to the truth of life.

So then, dear one, this is the central message for this introduction into the eleventh understanding which will develop into a rather involved journey. For the restructurings or reconstitutions of which we speak, when engaged and progressed along will facilitate the fuller engagement, you see. From one point of view, this might be seen as a completely new design or new being or vehicle of expression for life engagement. The parameters of third dimensional life, dear one, have served their purpose. Let us proceed now into the new adventure and the twelfth understanding yet to come. This will complete the circle of understanding.

The Co-existence of Completion and Beginning

December 31, 1997

JANU: Might we say that the culmination of this body of information and thrust for understanding will herald in, for many, a new threshold of understanding and mark, for them, a new life and identity so fulfilling that their previous identification or identity will seem a distant memory by comparison. The challenge and the opportunity is great. The challenge being: letting go of the old concepts in favor of the opportunity of the new.

NOETH ATULE: Now then, let us proceed with this twelfth discourse in such a way as to celebrate this circle of understanding. And circle it is, in the sense of completion, a completion of a thought in the mind, in the consciousness, in the beingness of the creative aspect or reality of this bubble of life, heretofore imagined as all that is, the source of all life. This source of which we speak ranges many such thoughts of our brothers.

What we would convey at this time is the understanding that completions are synchronous with beginnings. And the sense of a completion of an understanding of life is, at the same time, for those centered in its ongoingness, a new adventure full of discovery and larger venues of possibilities. We of the outer worlds and the rim of your universe alert elements of life through introduction to the elements of completion to a growing embrace of its reality. Each of these understandings bear witness to the elements of completion to your current wave of possibilities of life expression. Can you not see or understand that, from one point of view, they bring completion and, from another, bring new life, new possibilities, new realities to your sense of your being? Over the years to come, through these many presentations, there will be a gradual uplifting through completion into the next thought expansion of the source of this life bubble or wave.

Now, this principle of the coexistence of completion and beginning applies itself to every endeavor, no matter the perspective. What we are suggesting here is: the breath of life that gives life is found through this relationship with your life engagements, for, as we complete this circle of understandings at this juncture, it makes possible the beginning of the next circle of expansion. Also realize that, from one point of view, each expansion will appear to build on the first or the one before but, from another point of view, can be understood as completely new. What will begin to be revealed here is another step in a larger way to appreciate and engage non-linear reality. Life, then, not being limited to one element called linear progression or relationship. You will perceive and embrace simultaneous reality in every moment, in every understanding, and realize the diversity and co-existence of unlimited possibilities born of unlimited being.

So then, allow your linear appreciations of empirical structure and possibilities through these understandings but do not limit yourself to only one point of view. One truth in this larger perspective does not challenge or negate any other truth, you see. This is the nature of unlimited, non-linear reality. This twelfth understanding is one that embraces all presentations in this series under the umbrella of the reality of all inclusive, simultaneous co-existence of life. This circle of understanding, even as presented, is but the beginning of a larger understanding and embrace of what lies beyond.

The Reality of Oneness

January 29, 1998 B

NOETH ATULE: We of this Brotherhood, the Brotherhood of Progressed Understanding, share with you from the archives of collected understanding. These sharings are of this knowingness. The thirteenth, then, as you describe it, concentrates then on the focus of the understanding of the progression of waves of potential and their nature. These understandings are for the purpose of engaging these wave opportunities. Why not, then, understand their reality and their opportunity?

They are structured, for lack of a more appropriate term, initially non-dimensional in their reality, co-existing with many such waves in a reality or relationship that makes available their opportunity to any element of life, any collective according to their evolution in consciousness and interest. These waves of potential already exist and, at the same time, are evolving, regenerating, renewing. As is the source of life for your bubble of reality. They are--understand this clearly, dear one--a composite of the eddies, the flows of collective consciousness that exists in a fluid-like state throughout the elements of life. They are not a separate thing from the flows of life, but have the capacity to provide what appears as fresh opportunity to, due to the consciousness flows, the many elements of life's progression in consciousness, you see. Life produces these and these provide opportunity for life to progress.

Many do not yet embrace the reality that your so-called creator is you and you are that creator; therefore you are the source of these new opportunities and the beneficiary of what they offer and what you choose to make of them. This wave of potential on your doorstep, so to speak, has made its way through other realities and has been generated by other realities. And, through their determination to progress, you benefit, you see. And such it is, as it passes through your experience, providing opportunity for others. By living, dear ones, by engaging life, by creating and experiencing, you stir the cosmic soup, if you will, and enrich the broth. And these stirrings find their way, in time, throughout creation. And they are, in truth, the stirrings of the creator of life.

Understand, as you may, that you are the life, you are the journey, you are the wave of potential and the source of life, all at once. The reality of oneness is the nature of all. The journey into your perception of individuality and separateness is just but a piece of the potential for experience, created from your current wave of potential. It is a component of a much vaster reality that even is at one with your journey into uniqueness. In infinitely many different ways, and in many different movements through life, all that you are and all that you do touches all the rest of life. Understand the reality that all is known. We of this understanding have our being in this way and understand and know that you approach this more complete embrace of life from your current condition at this time.

For those who have the perception, this described reality can be seen in its shadow representation as you observe your world and its eddies and its flows of collective human generation of life waves and potential, that travel to and fro around and through your world, influencing individuals according to their perception and interest, as well as nations. Such it is with the rest of life, dear one. As an entire cosmic reality, we generate our new opportunities by living all the potential created thus far. It is a self-generating, self-creating, self-perpetuating living reality, which is your entire creation.

This is the next step for you, dear one. We of the Brotherhood that includes this understanding bid you welcome to the life in which you've always been one. We appreciate this opportunity to shed some light in this direction of understanding. And we will continue this adventure at the next opportunity. Thank you, our brother, and those who assist you making this possible.

The Path of Completion

February 26, 1998 A

JANU: We have summoned our brother Noeth Atule for this requested presentation. We await his arrival and would consider the ramifications of these understandings. Your world has yet to achieve a mass consciousness that embraces its full potential, even full potential in the shortfall, dear one, as a collective reality. These understandings stretch that collective opportunity even farther, for they are epoch in scope and embrace opportunity for life on a scale few imagine in their time frames.

Our brother draws near and we acknowledge his presence and authority and invite his transfer into communication at this time.

NOETH ATULE: I am Noeth Atule speaking once more and delighting somewhat in this opportunity to progress with these understandings. We say understandings with the proviso that it is understood that they are elements of one understanding, that being the summation of your potential for life experience in, as our brother Janu put it, the coming epoch. And you are correct. You surmise correctly that this counsel of progressed understandings is just that: progressions from the point of view those evolving into an understanding already established yet at the same time is open to and does evolve, open to assimilation for evolving. Assimilation of the experiences gained by those who participate in the opportunity.

Now then, as to the matter at hand, this next in the series you have numbered fourteen, and we will as well, for the sake of communication, let us begin.

We begin on the note that the theme for life is embrace of not only its potential but all that it has and is expressing. Each of these waves of potential are present to fulfill that need. Every collective or body of life, from the smallest to the most inclusive, has an innate desire and need to complete itself through awareness of itself, all that it is, all that it can be. At one stage in this process, the interest expands from its perception of boundary or identity to other identities or boundaries or pockets of life. At another stage, it becomes aware, as it embraces these pockets of life, that these pockets are now its body of life. And so, through these waves of progressed understanding and assimilation your created reality, on the largest sense or scale, knows itself. Now, as has been shown you earlier, the reality you refer to as your universe, your cosmos, your creator, has the same imperative and interest. And that is when the level of awareness has been achieved sufficiently, the interest expands to other pockets of life. And these other pockets, dear one, are viable realities, as is your imagined cosmos or universe.

Now this process of evolved awareness is knowable to any element of its being, as long as sufficient awareness development has taken place and the interest is there. The thrust of this fourteenth presentation is that you have the opportunity and potential for awareness and interest development in this new wave to engage the totality of your current realm of life on this grand scale. In this wave of potential is the seed pattern or thought for this understanding and experience. It has been placed there, in ways you have yet to understand, by the collective consciousness and maturity of your world's life substance or presence, consciousness if you will. These elements of understanding define and point the way for your progression.

The movement of the embrace of life in this direction will yield the perception that the competitions, the squabbles, the struggles for power over others, and manipulation for positions of apparent security, the benefit at the expense of others, and the finality of finite existence, become relegated to a limited understanding. And you will leave these behind, dear one, for they have no place in your new life. We of the Brotherhood of Progressed Understanding have the advantage of knowing this from the history of life. We offer you the vantage of life's history, yet to be experienced by you.

Consider carefully what has been presented and allow your embrace of the truth of life to enter into a new level of freedom. This freedom is known and lived, dear one, by many and has proven itself many times. What is unknown to you is known by many others. And they lovingly offer this to you.

The Essential Nature of the True Magic of Life

March 27, 1998 A

NOETH ATULE: We would have you understand at this time that this fifteenth presentation marks, if you will, a plateau in understanding and completes that plateau established to this point. The next series will elevate to another frame of reference or threshold of understanding which will be the common theme or common ground for the next explorations.

Now then, as to the fifteenth in this series of understandings, might we address it in this manner: We would have you understand the essential nature of the true magic of life. There is a quality of being, a nature of being that is common to all life. These many examinations of life's elements are vitalized by this common nature. What then is this nature of life that nurtures, supports, the compelling interests life has in itself?

Your entire universe is built upon a field of this life force presence. This field or continuum is the single thought, the singularity presence of that purest of beingness that life as you understand it is born of and continues by. You can, and would do well to, know more and more of this presence within your true nature. Nothing that is in all elements of your life, the life of your universe, regardless of dimensions, realities, exists without this field of life that is the initiator of all beginnings. In the beginning, that that allowed this purity of beingness to express as a field or platform for creation is the first principle for a vastness and richness of life beyond the imagination of most. And its allowing included, and includes, other fields of life. You will realize the fullness of the meaning of oneness when you engage life from this understanding.

What is it like, dear one, to possess a single thought that has, as its potential for expression, all that you have known, all that you have heard of, and all that you have not? What is the nature of such a thought? You attempt to encompass it in your manner of perception as something larger than your perception of a physical universe when in truth, dear one, its essential nature is a singularity from which your universe expands into materiality and all universes into their substance of expression. It is the divine paradox of the singularity possessing the potential for all expressions of life and their continuation.

It is true, as you have experienced, that this understanding is achieved through the truth at the heart of every infinitesimal speck of your universe. All is known, the entire universe can be known and experienced through the truth of the smallest aspect of its being. There is much to be understood of oneness. It is far more, dear one, than two elements of life agreeing with each other. You understand identity as a human. Do you understand identity as all of life, without preference, without bias, and without distance? Your boundary of life is that which is all of life.

This point of view embraces and continues all that we have discussed thus far. The next presentation will start a new chapter, dear one.