

The Awakening of Humanity

This series is related to Awakening and the Human Journey, which you are encouraged to also explore. As always, you are encouraged to take your own journeys and discover your own awakening and truth.

Clans that attend to Awakening of Humanity

January 17, 2000 A

JANU: The gatherings of these collectives, or clans (that have brought humanity to this point in its destiny), to be spoken of in this way, will begin to make their announcements and presence known to humanity in a variety of ways in different times, revealing, of course, humanity's origins, heritage, and destiny. The time for the sovereignty of humanity being perceived as something separate from the larger scheme of life, not being an integral part of a larger plan, is over. This time of so-called infancy in human development will be laid aside. These presentations in this particular series speak to this, yet humanity still does not understand the need for awakening and that truly epochal changes at hand.

Now, these clans will represent themselves in many ways, as we have already stated. The first being a rapidly growing sense in individuals, and soon groups of humanity, that their heritage, their lineage, is not limited to this world. There will come a time when this transitional experience or knowingness will forever extract someone from--rephrase: disconnect someone from previous perceptions of identity. Next in this unfoldment will come the visitors. For many, the fascination with such events have superficially been out of curiosity and excitement. The root of these longings runs deeper. There will be those who recognize old friends from other origins. They will have instantaneous knowing. Needless to say, the authorities of your world will be challenged. This series of events will restructure global attitudes and relationships that will render current divisiveness and territorialism obsolete. For those who do not understand or participate, this will be seen as intrusion. For those who have awakened and recognize the truth of this, it will be welcome relief. Thirdly, there will be a return, in measured way, of the Hierarchy of Light to the presence of humanity. This will come about as prelude to the fourth level of awakening leading to the movement of humanity into the extended dimensions of reality.

Recognize these patterns of movement of life to gauge your response and your preparation for such unfoldment. This brief announcement of this morning is concluded and we encourage you to consider this carefully and prepare your destiny to engage it. We are the Brotherhood of Light, speaking at this time, bidding you good day.

“The Second Coming”

January 17, 2000 B

JANU: We would speak more on this subject at this time, bringing to your attention the significance of, the importance of, that which is to come. These stages of awakening described earlier will bring about in humanity a wide range of reactions and responses. We would have you know that at this time preparations are being made to ameliorate confusions and disturbances, for the Hand of God, so to speak, will touch the hearts of those who will respond, for the souls or spirits of each are loved and held in this grasp and are well known to the forces of Light that are the vehicles for bringing this about, that are the instruments of these events.

The gnashing of teeth described in your scripture is a term relegated to the distant past, for without the understanding that grows even this day in your world such would be the experience of the majority of humanity when faced with the truth of their existence. The Second Coming, so to speak, was never intended to drive anyone further into confusion, self-doubt, and self-condemnation. Yet the revealing of the truth of life must begin from deep within each one and grow in their awareness with purpose and meaning.

And this is how it shall be, for mankind has on its doorstep that which requires awareness of the truths of life. No longer a species alone in the universe, but part of a Family of Life in what will seem a crowded universe until understood. So much of social structure will fall be the wayside that the core strength of inner knowingness must prevail and will do so. So prepare even now for a major shift in the priorities of your life and each day, for what is to come is worth the change.

An Introduction—building a vehicle to serve awakened humanity

Nov. 17, 2000 A

JANU: Today's opportunity addresses, if you will, at least one element of that which is to come in these discourses. This element practices these exercises by pronouncing them in the vehicles of our being. Now, understand this, dear one, there is a coming together of our consciousness and purpose, forming a vehicle that is with life and light and contributes to, or influences, the atmosphere of consciousness in your world. This element expresses what we have established and brings to the Earth atmosphere a knowingness that allows for the memory recall, the awakening, of all who allow its embrace. It is imperative that we build this vehicle sufficiently to accomplish its capability. There are movements in your world of change, of quickening, of alignment and cooperation, of peace, and of doing. We will be known in time as the ones who brought about a clear pathway to the remembrance of the integrity of self and the true nature. These pathways restore purpose and the ensuing harmony that unites resources of the individual. We shall continue to nurture this vehicle, this element of what is to come, and it is a 'way shower' whose central purpose is to serve life itself. We move with you in this direction, our dear brother, and truly welcome each opportunity to contribute to our common goal, the awakening of humanity and the evolution and advancement of the Earth.

Awakening to current limitations in perceptions

November 22, 2000

JANU: We will begin this evening's service at this time, which shall include a time testing of the parameters of existence for those who exist in your world, living on the edge of the norms of understanding for your societies. These individuals bring about, in their system of reality, borders or barriers of consciousness that are defined by the time constraints of your dimension. Or should we say, perception of its parameters? What we serve this evening is their freedom from this, realizing areas of their potential for expression and engagement of life not able to be seen much less utilized. We serve them at this time, giving them the tools of understanding to inspire their adventure in living to extend beyond current thresholds. This service will take the form of many moments of opportunity for each one to include direct insights, key observations, direct communication, and encounters with those that will enrich the opportunity for the encounter, in such a way as to inspire each other to reach beyond current perceptions or limitations. These many opportunities are facilitated by the legions of servers. One more element in the awakening of humanity.

These come as what might appear as pearls of light that penetrate the veil to see for a moment an understanding of each one's potential. You see it in this way and so serve at this time.

The awakening of humanity (Service)

May 7, 2001 A

JANU: We have at this time an opportunity to proceed in a direction to be known as the resurgence of desperation and desperate measures of the men of your world and their affiliations with the organizers of the challenges to peace and world order and individual blossoming of gifts of the spirit, the spirit nature of humanity. These desperate measures sadden the collective consciousness of humanity, bringing about a gray presentation to the heart chakra of the planet Earth.

We begin at this time to acknowledge those forces of sweeping change occurring in various parts of your world that are bringing about a consistency and a contingent plan to address these grievances expressed by so many. Let us turn our attention now to a holding pattern that will bring about these changes designed to respond favorably with the gifts of those anchored in the spirit.

(Extended pause)

What we are accomplishing here, dear one, is the beginning movements of a progression in the revitalization of that bestowed on humanity by its own creators and participants. There is the need at this time for a determined effort on the part of those representatives in the human octave of life to continue and magnify the holding of that needed for the awakening of humanity. Let us resume, then, our development of the momentum needed to anchor these many understandings into Earth consciousness. Teach all that your journeys may touch to restore their full vitality and awaken their core consciousness to the fuller life.

The presence of Love in the Path of Awakening

July 25, 2001 B

JANU: To pursue this course, for anyone's journey, is to embark upon a path of righteous commitment, forsaking no part of life and embracing that which gives all life.

Love, as a vehicle for awakening, brings order and harmony to the elements of that awakening and reveals ever more of the purity of thought as creator.

Love on the path of awakening inspires the purity of the journeys of everyone. Love on the path of awakening awakens all of the powers within for health and well-being, clarity of mind, openness of heart, symmetry of your engagement with life. Balance and order do not limit the diversity of your journeys, but enrich them and reveal all that they contain.

Love on the path of awakening beholds the truth of the one awakening and the object of that awakening.

Love on the path of awakening honors life as none other can. And the opportunities to embrace all aspects of life are opened to you, reaching into the depths of your being.

Love on the path of awakening explains life with such great clarity that none is condemned or dismissed out of hand.

Love on the path of awakening reveals patience as a virtue and a theme that allows all life its due.

We beseech you to understand these things and embrace them in your way. We are the Brotherhood of Light, and this we know. Namaste.

The Memory of Awakening

November 25, 2001 A

JANU: Let us begin then with today's journey, bringing into focus that which pertains to the evolution of the awakening of humanity and its precepts. What course, then, better describes this effort than to beckon that which harkens the heart and mind and soul of humanity to engage in dialogue with life to this end. Or beginning, depending on your perspective.

The summing quickens the response needed in those aspects of human consciousness to recall that which created them in the first place, you see. The pattern for human destiny and its awakening resides in the memory of all of your vehicles, dear one. This pattern recognizes the desire of matching pattern in the vehicles for the quickening. Let us begin then on that premise and quicken the vehicles for awakening, by acknowledging the inherent pattern of awakened state that exists as the guiding truth for the movement through life. Let this be, then, an exercise in experience for those you would counsel to begin their journey of awakening, according to their desire, you see. The master pattern for awakening, if you will, already exists within the nature of each one and instinctively coordinates and communicates with collective awakening of the entire human population as one body, one body yet many. Consider this model carefully as a first step to inspire others.

Service to Awakening of those in Conflicts

February 11, 2003 C

JANU: We would begin our talk this evening announcing that the degree of service enhanced by the coming times and events for humanity, meaning the conflicts that are rising at this time, in a sense will push human consciousness further back into doubt and fear, but these events only serve to reinforce the need for change in human consciousness from the perspective of the global community larger than humanity. It may seem easier to see this than from the perspective of those in conflict, but make no mistake. The larger view is valid.

And what we see at this time is pronounced activity on the borders of Pakistan and Turkey that must be measured in hours and days, for secular disturbances bring about much confusion in the hearts and minds of the common people or those not so engaged directly in these events. What we serve this evening is the stilling of those forces that bring confusion and serve the hearts and minds of those not filled with thoughts of power that they stay the course of their individual life paths of integrity and honorable pursuit. For the strength in the future, dear one, is not with these forces of confusion but those with a tradition and momentum of honorable life and family and peace.

And so we serve at this time by bringing encouragement and vitality to these. Do so now, our brother. Touch the grace that lives within each one and bring clarity and peace. And it brings the comfort of a warm blanket on a cold night in a world of confusion. The awakening of humanity is rooted in the hearts and minds of those with a simple life, for through these life affords the power to create in a manner after the life they lead far grander than those who bring confusion to the simplicity of life.

Awakening that is coming to everyone

May 6, 2005 A

JANU: This day brings a memorable time when there was once a child born to a king of kings. This archetype birth revealed to those in the midst that there was and would be coming a new light and a new understanding. This birth, though real and symbolic, is the awakening that is coming to everyone. We would like to announce at this time that there will be awakening for each and the birthing will bring in new light and new life and new beginning. Each one comes with an angel bearing the gift of the love of the first light. It is a magical time and will liberate humanity. The joy is in its coming and not the need to know when. Let there be among you those who rejoice openly. We rejoice with you, our brother, for it is certain and it will be. Namaste.

Awakening to the Genius in Everyone

Nov. 19, 2012 B

JANU: Service this evening renders impotence to the notion that humanity will always be in conflict and destructive. For there exists within humanity the alternative and this alternative is in harmony with the beauty that holds life together. Humanity's experience has been brief compared to its destiny. But those who cannot see beyond its history see nothing else. Humanity will continue its destructive path until it tires of it and realizes it can never gain freedom through war. But what other model of life have they known?

Unenlightened humanity sees the homeless person without worth, the child only as unknown potential. What we serve this evening is the awakening of humanity to the genius in everyone and no longer willing to waste anyone. The population explosion, so to speak, in some ways is nature's response to many being incarnate that a few might succeed in the awakening of humanity. For many creative potentials are unrealized, under-developed, and the opportunities for expression and discovery are diverted for what are perceived as more profitable pursuits. This lack of vision out-pictures itself in so many with low self-esteem and no vision of their worth or opportunity to discover it.

The awakening of humanity is the path to so much, words cannot describe. So let us be about our business, our brother, and serve this awakening. This is our focus this evening. And so be it.

The grandest journey of all (Service)

June 27, 2013 B

JANU: I am Janu speaking, transferring or handing off, if you will, the moment to the encouragement of a journey into the truth of life. For that is the purpose of the truth of Light, the truth of life, to inspire, to draw, to encourage awakening. What grander journey is there, our brother, than discovery, expanding understanding, deepening of contribution to life, and a meaning to your existence that is ever more profound and becoming one with all of life. What can be said to bring this into greater clarity, the clarity that comes from ownership, experience, and a deepening love for life. Consider all that you are aware of, all that you think you know, all that you think you've become. And, as you do, you realize all of this speaks of the promise of all that is, all that is to be.

We would have you understand that, as you discover and explore, you become aware that so many others are on the journey as well. And, because they are, and because you are, you are partners, brothers and sisters in the grandest journey of all. And, because of the awakening, you come to know of each other and to connect with each other and, in time, you are one in your consciousness. And their life is yours and your life is theirs and there are no secrets, for those who live in the Light, the truth of life.

What greater service than to become all that life needs, all that life is. Love will take on greater and greater meaning, with more profound elements of its totality becoming your own. We would have you know this, for this is the life we live and journey for and serve. Be generous with each other, and patient, and grow in your understanding of everyone you meet. Thank you, our brother, and namaste.

Questions to help awaken humanity (Service)

Sept. 16, 2013 B

JANU: Service this evening, then, requires that one prepare for events to come dealing with the next event or threshold in human consciousness answering the question: "Who am I truly?" "What am I truly?" and the honesty and courage to accept it. Dealing with the realities of life successfully through the filters of misperceptions as to one's true nature is certainly a challenge. Now, this question is not to be answered by another, but within the depths of your own consciousness.

Another question is: "What is the scope of your understanding as to the nature of love?" And even not being incarnated, the question is valid.

"How did life begin and how and when will it end?"

And "What is life?"

These questions are a catalyst for an evolution in consciousness and awakening. We ask these questions for the purpose of stimulating the consciousness of humanity, that it embrace the freeing of itself from limitation, having you give your clearest perspective to everything that concerns you.

“How clearly do you understand the communication from another?”

And “What is Truth, from your own perception and perspective?”

And “What do you truly know and own?”

These questions we offer to the consciousness of humanity on their journey into enlightenment and destiny. Thank you, our brother, and namaste.

Awakening (as experience)

Sept. 29, 2013

JANU: I am Janu speaking, researching today the element of life that prolongs interest in the development of the tools or skills of awakening.

What is awakening, then, but becoming more conscious of more of life? And that includes who you are and your journey of awakening, what you choose to include in it. Your awakening is, in a very real sense, life itself awakening, awakening to its nature, its capabilities, its potential, its diversity, and its existence. And it begs the question: What is existing? And what are we without it?

Now, awakening is an experience of inclusion, for nothing is lost in the process and everything is gained. We do not trade one awareness for another but expand awareness to include more. The benefit of this, at least in part, is that all you have experienced and come to understand has light shed upon it, light being the Truth of Life. Embracing more of life for what it is, not just what you want it to be. Seeing things the way they are, when less awakened, has a tendency to be seen as fixed, permanent, substantial, and locked into its existence. More awakening changes this to the realization that everything is in motion, changing, expanding, retracting, converting, transposing, and interconnecting. Influencing the rest of life and being influenced by the rest of life. Awakening is the revealer of everything.

Now, one asks, “Why can’t awakening be instantaneous and complete?” Because the journey, our brother, of awakening carries its own wisdom and richness and the time, so to speak, to assimilate the nature and substance of it. When this occurs, one owns the experience and the depths of the experience continue to reveal themselves. Yes, life is a process, an unfoldment without end. To more fully partake of the opportunities of this process, one embraces awakening. Every part of existence in your experience benefits from growing awareness and understanding and intimacy with the process of life. Some refuse to address this directly, or so it would seem. But understand, our brother, that they are regulating their journey, their processing, to more fully experience their level of awareness. And this is right and proper, so to speak, for it is the prerogative of every sentient being to choose their path and, when they want it to change or accelerate, it will do so. For the opportunities will always be there.

Now, yes, there is life as you know it, or anticipate it, but there is life that you don’t know and seemingly unrelated to your path. So, when you ask of ‘Where would we be without life?’ one must be open to the reality that there are completely different natures of life of which your current experience is but one. You ask: “Does one nature of life have a relationship with any others?” And the answer is yes, our brother, but in a different way to this current understanding.

A bit abstract for this current process and path of awakening. So we continue as we have, to explore awakening and to what do we awaken, our brother, and the processing of the new awarenesses into the life. Worthy questions, worthy pursuits, and worthy outcomes. Namaste.

The awakening of humanity (service)

Oct. 14, 2013 B

JANU: I am Janu speaking, serving again this evening the awakening of humanity. A constant purpose and theme as we proceed. You ponder the questions: “Awakening to what?” “To what degree?” “When?” and “Why?”

Awakening serves the realization of potential for sentient life. There are those in humanity who find peace and comfort in one day looking somewhat like another, predictable, with little change. These are the ones that maintain social foundation and stability, as opposed to chaos, with adequate time to assimilate the small changes in life and their revelations. Why does one, then, fear the unknown? There are those who hunger for it. They thrive on discovering uncertainty.

What is it, then, we encourage, our brother, in this awakening reality? We encourage confidence and commitment and embrace of life with so many riches in store for humanity, waiting for humanity to open their minds and hearts but a little. Now, in the larger view, awakening isn't just for humanity, but the benefits to life and others and ultimately other worlds are through the realization of human potential. Everything humanity does professionally and otherwise becomes richer, evolves, takes on deeper meaning. Thus, humanity's legacy grows. How does one then recognize when awakening is occurring? Creativity expands. Sensitivity to others, to nature, the truth of your being, quickens. A love for life is enhanced. Insight into your life and the lives of others is revealed. Understanding of the nature of health and the contributing factors are better understood personally and with others. Communication with animals and other creatures begins. A more natural movement or flow through life, with less struggle and confusion. Being aware of occurrences when not present. Communication without words, and a growing inner peace.

Coming changes in human awakening

Oct. 19, 2013

JANU: We have spoken recently of many new possibilities for humanity's awakening, discoveries, experiences. We suggest at this time that they are on their way, so to speak, and with your attention placed upon the media and conversation with others, be aware that elements of these comings are beginning to be questioned, considered, speculated upon, and even predicted across the human landscape. The areas of conversation will be that of human awakening, individuals sensing occurrences, becoming aware of the thoughts and intents of others, a sensitivity to the health or well-being of another, remarkable occurrences that will bring attention to these by the media and others.

There will be coming several significant events through science of off-world discoveries, coordinated with archeological discoveries of the existence of other life, other beings. The evidence archeologically has always been there; however, humans tend to see what they want to see, what their consciousness can accept. More and more people will be seeing, visually with their eyes and their minds, subtle realities and insights into the nature of things will be known. The ability to dowse water, well known for many years, will become better understood, with wider application. Locating individuals hiding from authorities and society will be more successful. Needless to say, many of these capabilities will necessitate new standards for privacy, personal integrity, the limits of authority.

It is all coming, our brother, and humanity will be supported through this with insight and encouragement. These changes will occur in many areas of life for humanity, and will finally bring a conscious relationship with the creatures of the world, and the Earth, nature, as a welcome relief to all of these. Observe the changes, our brother. They will be subtle at first, but unmistakable. Namaste.

Awakening (encouraged)

Nov. 19, 2013

JANU: I am Janu speaking, urging then at this time that we continue to prevail upon the consciousness of humanity to awaken more fully. There is not a final destination in awakening, but an ever increasing awareness of life and conscious interaction with it, in service and in creativity, stemming from a growing love for life and the life that we all are.

This morning's journey continues the quest for continued awakening, for it exists everywhere and all of life is on the move. Now competition is not the theme here, from one part of life to another. What is here is the desire to love and serve life, no matter what form it takes, that it reaches more of its potential. For, as life accomplishes this, all of life benefits. Competition comes from the isolation of individuality and the more unconscious awareness.

So, continue to encourage awakening, our brother, explaining what it is and what it can achieve. And, of course, a peaceful mind and a peaceful heart, open to new understandings, helps make this possible. Thank you, our brother, and namaste.

The Awakening of Humanity continues

Jan. 5, 2014

JANU: Awakening has always existed, our brother, but these are accelerated times, for the rest of life moves this way as well, and humanity is part of it. The consciousness of humanity does in fact exist in other realms. And life is moving. Some of the dynamics or elements of the movement of awakening in these times are dissatisfaction and frustration with current circumstances, soul-searching so to speak for answers, for a better way of life, recognizing at the same time that current circumstances are unresolved. Realizing that the media describe the mayhem more clearly and more frequently than the beauty of humanity and its potential, thinking that the public is more interested in such behavior when, in truth, the public is interested in a better way of life, not being pandered to in their fears and frustrations.

The one you call Pope exemplifies this alternative. His religion is more the people than dogma or theology. There are many in the masses living simpler lives yet carrying the momentum of awakening to a better life, understanding the simple truths and beauty and power more than many so-called leaders, political and military. So, frequently we reach out to the hearts and souls of these with simpler lives, with encouragement, inner strength, and insights into their awakening. They are the vanguard, our brother, of what is to come.

The governments and leaders come and go, but the people remain to lead the way. Yes, Mandela understood this is where the real power is for change, for the evolving collective consciousness of humanity and its place in the future. Many civilizations on many worlds have endured these struggles, our brother. Many still do. It is part of life, as are we. Be encouraged, full of faith and commitment to a bright future. Namaste.

A new day for humanity

Apr. 14, 2014

JANU: There will come in time a liberation of the human spirit, leaving behind the darkness of the past and the present. This liberation will come in the form of agreeable cooperation based upon a growing understanding of what can be accomplished together and the waste that comes from conflict and greed, power struggles, fear of the unknown and each other.

This new day dawning for humanity will begin to blossom in the decades to come. It will not originate from one location or one person, but an uprising of profound inner desire around the world, here and there, not only for a better life, but from memory of a better life. For many in your world are not exclusive to Earth experience and bring with them the memories of a more peaceful and richer life.

This will occur for some in September of this year, and grow exponentially, a growing number of people. It is an awakening of the spirit overtaking and replacing the darkness on the human journey. This is not just something to be observed from without but gains its strength and scope from within, for many still see the outer world as the primary reality. It is not. Evolution of human consciousness is not limited to the daily outer experience, but from a growing presence within of True Nature, memories, potential, capability, experience, and a love for life.

We see this occurring soon, our brother, for so much lies before humanity to be achieved. It is time. The wandering in the comparative darkness is ending. There will be those who will resist the change, delaying it only for themselves. A new way of life, a new way of living is on the horizon. Rejoice in this. Embrace it, and enjoy your future. Namaste.

Angels and the Hierarchy collaborate to serve humanity (Service)

May 6, 2014 B

JANU: Service then this evening pertains to an agreement of sorts between the angels and the Hierarchy of our familiarity. This agreement or arrangement has to do with the destiny of humanity and its service to life that will represent and be a channel for these. For this to occur in a balanced way, humanity's awakening will include inspiration in harmony with this agreement.

What we serve this evening is our contribution to this that will include a growing understanding of the scope and depth and nature of these two. So be alert, our brother, to journeys that will include these understandings and communications and the paths of cooperation. Many elements in realities of life serve the awakening of humanity with commitment, patience, and wisdom.

Thank you, our brother, and namaste.

Inspiring humanity to awaken (Service)

May 8, 2014 B

JANU: I am Janu speaking, welcoming then again this opportunity to mix it up, as it were, in the arena of life, gesturing to humanity to awaken. A theme of constant encouragement to see the Truth of Life, sometimes called the Light. Even while fully engaged in living in the physical world and its realities, one can perceive the reality behind that which is observed, that which is outpicturing in the life. Seeing the truth at the heart of things brings wisdom to the choices that are made.

Awakening is not a departure from engaging the physical world. It is seeing its depth, understanding the tapestry of its existence and how it functions. When challenged to this, for individuals, it is for them to be convinced or be open to the possibility of this, that they are capable of wondrous things and they are designed from the beginning to achieve this and more. Humanity, individually speaking as well, has a great capacity to co-create with life, constantly re-inventing itself and discovering more and more of life. Awakening serves the Earth as well, for aren't you a vehicle of expression, your bodies made of Earth materials, nourished by Earth energies?

In time we will bring new language to these journeys, as we explore new realities, new possibilities. And by 'new' we mean new to the consciousness. So let us continue to encourage people to awaken to who and what they are, what they are capable of, and the realities around them and in them. This is our service, our brother, this evening. Namaste.

The collective consciousness of humanity is awakening

June 4, 2014

JANU: There is a growing presence in our vicinity of attunement and this presence is the collective consciousness of humanity, speaking as one. For as the individual awakens to their own True Nature, the collective consciousness of the one humanity quickens to its own True Nature and, in due course, humanity and individuals will become aware of this truth that describes humanity's reality in the presence of life.

What we see this morning is a movement in consciousness for all that will facilitate humanity of the Earth becoming attuned to the humanity of other worlds. For the collective consciousness of humanity includes these, you see, and they are all one in this reality. So it behooves every grouping of humanity to awaken, building the foundation for what is to come. Understand this, our brother: humanity is not just a collection of physical incarnations, or should we say physically incarnated beings, but a multi-layered reality of presence in the flow of life. There will come a time when the concept of individual consciousness and personality ego will give way to a preferred and more fulfilling reality of collective consciousness, leading to at-onement with the overall thrust of life and destiny of the much larger human experience.

This perception is awakening throughout humanity and the name "humanity" will take on a much larger and deeper meaning. All of humanity is awakening, our brother, and the fundamentals of this collective perception will extend opportunities for profound relationships with many other worlds, and many other species, and many other realities of subtle existence. Much is coming, our brother. Let us prepare. Namaste.

Humanity is awakening

Sept. 23, 2014 B

JANU: This evening, let us observe the enlightenment of humanity occurring at this time. Many are letting go more and more of the limits of incarnation to find greater freedom of being within themselves. They are discovering that there is a quiet and harmonious power in a peaceful life and the pressures of the workaday world are being managed without reaction. They are taking within their ownership of their own power to choose a life, even day to day, that they enjoy more.

They will discover that the illnesses accrued come from the insanity of lifestyles and begin to abate when a life becomes more peaceful, even though they are embracing challenges and finding achievement. Excellent health is not served only by one new medicine after another, but by a more stress free yet active way of living. Humanity is awakening, our brother, and they like the results and understandings. So shall it be.

The inner call to awaken

June 22, 2015

JANU: There is an inner call to awakening. For some, it sounds like the single peal of a bell. For others, it's a welling up in the heart. For others, an emptiness that is filling. For others, a simple knowing. The source of this call is the True Nature itself, which is who you are, and the remembering begins.

As you respond to the call, the struggle to let go of old ways becomes a natural occurrence and effortless as the process continues. This is not a manufactured experience on your part but one that is allowed, embraced, welcomed, and cherished. A natural occurrence occurring many times before. Remembering the true oneness of your being and sensing the right timing of the call.

Now, the call is not to leave incarnate life, but to embrace it, serve it, and understand it in a larger, deeper way. One does not convince another of this through speech, proclamations, but by example and the innate connection with others, for the Truth and Light within you exists in them as well. And truth always recognizes truth.

Progress on the human journey of awakening

July 23, 2015 B

JANU: We are raising the consciousness this evening to include the condition of the awakening of humanity. This evening's understanding and observation of this is founded on the principle that there belongs to each collective of a species of consciousness that the collective understanding of this subject is available to all servants with commitment. The seeming social distractions from awakening seem to belie current reality.

It is a service to continue to see and serve the progress humanity is making in its rejection of violence and embrace of wanting something better, more peaceful, more powerful in each one's life. Caring for the well-being of the Earth and its creatures, and its ecosystems, its children and their education, collectively humanity is advancing. Seven percent, if you can measure it that way, which is a grand step forward. Humanity is fearing less and less those who would destroy the serenity and the peace and the power of the people's dreams. Violence no longer feared has no future.

Be alert, our brother. Life, in the form of the creatures of the world, its weather patterns, its energetic realities, is powerful indeed and it has the ability, to varying degrees, to direct its own True Power to strengthen those who are in harmony with it. So, instead of being against mis-creations by humanity, be in harmony with the natural forces of peace that do exist in the world. Learn of them. Be sensitive to them. Serve them as they serve you. And this is not done being alone, our brother. There are so many who serve humanity, whether incarnate or not. Be confident in the power of this, its growth, its depth, in the presence of your life and the Earth that loves you. A better life is already on the way. Namaste.

Awakening is a process

Aug. 7, 2015 B

JANU: For this evening's journey, let us pursue a natural course of events that lead to awakening. We do not speak of awakening here as a single event, but the process of evolving consciousness of and as the True Nature. Moments of unexplained insight that prove to be true. Moments of inspiring another that prove helpful. Moments of unusual peace within the being. Moments of desire to know more, not for entertainment but to embrace more of life in the richness that brings. Moments of deep concern for the healing and well-being of another, not for self-aggrandizement but a sincere wish for their freedom. Moments of caring for the Earth and its creatures. Moments of appreciating someone's endeavor. Moments of loving a child and their smile and their happiness and their growth. A desire to be part of life and serve it. And the growing memory that you have been this before and will be again. Unlimited mind and freedom to enrich life, not on your own but in harmony with the Family of Life.

Awakening is all of this and much more. This is not an ego quest, but an appreciation of life. Namaste.

Awakening is a continuous process

Oct. 8, 2015

JANU: Let us begin by holding in the Light of reason the seeming chaos of life, with its simultaneous complications and diverse elements. Embrace what you may, but hold to the ideal: these many elements are foundations for wisdom gaining and securing a conscious place in life. Why not, then, take life as it is, not finding fault with it but mastering its opportunities? The greater the challenge, reach deeper within. The answers already exist. The power already exists. The support has always been there.

Much of life exists even though unseen. But what eyes do you see with? The eyes that can only see what they recognize? Your powers of observation and understanding exist in a larger way. The whole of your being perceives life, including your own nature. Resting on your laurels can be complacency with what you think you know. Yes, there are times for pauses to assimilate what has been gained, make sense of it and apply it to the life. But moving forward, expanding your consciousness, perceiving more of life continues.

Awakening does not mean the end of challenges and opportunities. If anything, they are more profound, all encompassing. The theme here, you see, is engaging more and more of life, not in a fanatical way but in a loving way. Service to life is a constant, always to be enhanced through awakening. Even the concept of mastering the universe, understanding it, is an unlimited goal and must be tempered with the reality of other universes as well, countless in number. Enrich your life and enrich Life. And enjoy life. Namaste.

Life beyond the veil

Mar. 7, 2016

JANU: What we see first here is a more spontaneous response to living situations, not only in your understanding, your awareness, but your relationship with others and their needs. Humanity in general is constantly seeking enlightenment. Life is very confusing in many situations. Many play a game of society, posturing image for impression with others to fit in and for advantage, yet secretly longing for pure understanding to the nature of life, their own existence, and wisdom. Very confused as to what love is and simple happiness seems illusive. Representing a more natural way of existence through constant attunement or awareness as to the nature of life can be an inspiration for those looking for understanding or answers to their questions. Not from you, but from within their own True Natures, Life itself. And that is what this is about, in part, our brother. A natural existence of understanding and awareness, a knowingness within your being untapped so to speak, always. No sense of aloneness and being lost in the sea of life.

This connection we speak of that you inquire about is not abnormal. It is uncommon. But more people tap into this from time to time in their lives than they realize. You can inspire them to be better at it, so to speak, for it to be more reliable and available. Every insight need not be recorded but taken within to your foundation of understanding.

We see developments here, not only in understanding but utilization of faculties in the application of energies and consciousness, promoting healing, peace of mind, a strong sense of inner strength and confidence, a natural happiness and sense of humor, recognizing absurdities and enjoying play. Much to explore and accomplish and, yes, master.

The veil, our brother, was never intended to be permanent or eternal. Only a tool to help one focus on the incarnate life, only for as long as needed. More and more are nearing the end of that journey, to find guidance within to carry them further. All of these and more: faculties, facilities, and gifts of life to be explored. Understanding and experiencing a direct connection with the rest of life is a grand journey, for life is rich and has much to offer itself in the coming together. Many systems in your physical bodies have a harmonious and mutually beneficial relationship. All the parts of life have this as well.

Becoming one in your consciousness, in your experience, is enriching. Developing this way of life while incarnate as well is full of wonder and so-called miracles. Life is magical, our brother. The scope and depth of the journeys cannot be fully foretold. But the promise is real and so is the fulfillment. Namaste.

The inclusive nature of awakening

Mar. 21, 2016

JANU: Welcome, our brother, to the journey of a lifetime: the awakening to your True Nature and all that that includes. Some would call it an altered state of consciousness. More inclusive than altered, our brother, for even the human consciousness, the human journey, is included.

As one awakens, one includes more and more of the Truth of Life in their awareness. And not only their awareness, but their engagement. This truth has two faces, if you will: the inclusive nature of your own consciousness and the inclusion of you in the larger life. For there is a collective consciousness of everything some call 'oneness.' Speaking with one voice, living with one consciousness, being one with everything and every no-thing, brings a perspective to your relationship with life and life's relationship with you that has no secrets but the wonder of realization of potential. What some would call the ugly side of life, of human behavior, is measured by and exists within the beauty and wonder of it all. This is the perspective of the awakening consciousness and the nature of the life that continues on.

Challenges are part of the mix. Open your heart and your mind to the rewards of these. Be confident always in the substance and nature of the flow of life. Engage and embrace everything in this way. Namaste.

A time of quickening

Mar. 31, 2016

JANU: We are breathing life, so to speak, into the freedom of communication. What we see here this morning in the density of material life is a systemic change in the Earth, in the flow of the colors of the spectrum of life moving more rapidly as they change. There is a stirring in the consciousness of the planet, a quickening, if you will, between the Earth consciousness and the human consciousness, as well as other creatures. There is a tightening, so to speak, a focusing of coordination and the evolution of humanity in consciousness is more actively linked with each other. On the larger scale, this change, this quickening, is in harmony with the solar centered system of worlds.

These quickenings come and go, and are part of the pulse of life everywhere. There are the quieter times, the slumbering so to speak, for reflection and assimilation, for rejuvenation. And the quickening times for the creativity, interaction, and coordination of the flows of life. This is such a time. A growing interest in many things, sorting out those that draw you into deeper involvement and contribution.

Communications such as these is one such focus, or can be. Involvements can be larger than one individual. But networking, cooperation, and coordination of interests are rewarding and build creatively grander opportunities that will persist. Awaken then to deeper interests, imagination, and the creative flow that expresses your True Nature. Develop a growing harmonious relationship with the life around you and what is to come. Anticipate the flow of life revealing so much more. Namaste.
